SPY PROBERS TO HEAR 'HIGH UPS'

Consumers Urged Cut Down Meat Purchases; Short '47 Corn Crop, Exports Getting Blame

CHICAGO, Aug. 12—"Unless consumers curtail their buying rather sharply, meat may reach still higher prices as we approach the low point in meat supplies late this Summer or early in the fall, Allan B. Kline, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, declared today. He continued:

"The short corn crop of 1947, on top of the general inflation of our economy, accentuated the shortage of meat (and consequently high prices) in 1948.

"Even with the short corn crop, we could have produced more meat by substituting half-a-million bushels of 1947 wheat from the largest crop we ever harvested, for the corn that we lacked. But the wheat was not available because it had been shipped to foreign nations to stave off starvation.

"Now we must wait until we can produce more hogs and feeder cattle and chickens to utilize the 1948 corn crop which now promises to exceed last year's billion bushels.

(Editor's note: The Department of Agriculture estimated Tuesday that the 1948 corn crop would be a record three billion, 506 million bushels as compared with the short 1947 crop of two billion, 400 million bushels.)

"In considering the meat supply situation, we must look at several factors. There are 145 million people to feed in this country now, 15 million more than there were 10 years ago. There are 61 million people employed, or 15 million over prewar.

"Personal incomes are at the rate of $210 billion a year, compared with $73 billion in 1939. People are eating about 17 percent more per capita than in the prewar years.

"It is no wonder the demand for meat has outrun the supply. But, even so, remember there is more meat available for consumers, per capita, than there was from 1939 to 1941. When incomes are high, American people will eat a lot of meat, and pay high prices for it.

"We can reasonably look forward to increased supplies of meat in 1949. We will have a billion more bushels of corn to feed than we had last year. Economists are predicting that the corn price will drop to support level, about $1.45 a bushel.

"To appreciate what that means to feeders, remember that many hog and cattle feeders paid $2.25 a bushel, and more, for much of the corn they made into meat this year.

"Meat production will increase, but it will take time. A break is certain to come, but nobody knows when.

Big 4 Holds Important Conference

Kremlin Again Site For Negotiations

MOSCOW, Aug. 12—The three Western ambassadors again met Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov tonight in what may be the most important talks yet regarding the East-West impasse in Germany.

U. S. Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau and Frank Roberts, special envoy for British Foreign Secretary Bevin, entered the kremlin together.

Reports indicated that the talks with Molotov had reached a crisis where either side must be ready to modify bargaining conditions if another Big Four conference is to be held.

The Western ambassadors were understood to have received a new set of instructions following their Monday night talk with Molotov in the effort to find a basis for negotiating over the East-West differences in Berlin and elsewhere.

* * *

THE SOVIET press in Berlin has reported the talks are deadlocked on the Berlin currency dispute. Other reports says Molotov has refused to lift the Soviet blockade in Berlin unless the Western Allies shelve their plan for a West German government and make "other concessions."

The West refuses to negotiate general German problens as long as the Berlin blockade is maintained.

The Western abassadors have been contacting Soviet officials in Moscow since July 30.

In Berlin, the Russians admitted today that food distribution in their Berlin sector has bogged down, and that open political revolt against Communist domination is flar-

Samarin Couple To Be Queried

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—The House UnAmerican Activities Committee announced today that "many persons high up in the government" will be called to testify in the Communist spy investigation.

Chairman Thomas, (R) N. J., said witnesses will include officials whose names have not yet been mentioned in the sensational testimony about Soviet espionage in wartime Washington.

Thomas asserted also that the investigation will continue "until we get at the root of the situation."

The committee chairman announced that Mikhail Samarin and his wife, Claudia, fugitive Russian school teachers, will be questioned at a closed-door meeting of the committee today.

The Samarins, refugees from what they have called Russian "vengeance" arrived in Washington this morning. Thomas said the closed hearing might be opened to the public later today.

* * *

THESE developments came as the Justice department moved into the spy inquiry with a strong hint of perjury action, and as a "hostile" witness was bluntly accused of lying under oath at the hearing.

U. S. District Attorney George Morris Fay obtained from the committee a transcript of spy hearing testimony. Thomas said Fay is studying the "perjury angle."

Meanwhile, two witnesses accused by Elizabeth Bentley of being members of a wartime Communist spy group refused to answer pertinent questions, including possible Communist Party membership.

They were Charles Kramer, ex-New Deal government employe, and Abraham George Silverman, former civilian employe in the Air Force under Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, now serving a perjury sentence resulting from war profiteering charges.

Rep. Nixon, (R) Calif., bluntly accused Kramer of "committing perjury" by stating that the only organizations of which he

Marshall Says Yanks Stand Firm

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—American policy in the tug-of-war with Russia stands crystal clear today: The U. S. government will enter into no agreement with the Kremlin merely for agreement's sake.

Secretary of State Marshall personally laid down this bar to appeasement of the Communist drive for world domination.

Marshall made his utterance in connection with the East-West conference in Belgrade on Danube river navigation. But his associates point out that it applies equally to the Berlin blockade, control of the Ruhr, German's future economy, and Pacific area issues now centering in Korea and Japan.

The secretary and his aides steadfastly refused to discuss the Big Four negotiations currently in progress in Moscow over the Berlin blockade and the possibility of a council of foreign ministers meeting on the whole German problem.

PENDING AN agreement on future procedure, State department officials insisted it would be a breach of faith on their part.

Marshall was most definite, however, on the Danube question. He said the Belgrade conference—where the Western

'Do-Nothing' Solons Again Scored

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—President Truman today again scored the "do-nothing" Congress for failing to act on his 11-point legislative program.

The White House issued a statement summarizing the status of congressional action on Mr. Truman's recommendations.

The statement was issued in the form of a "box score" entitled "summary of action by the Congress on the President's recommendations at the special session."

The President's "box score" indicted Congress for "failure to act' on a great majority of the presidential legislative requests at the special session which Mr. Truman called to deal with what he described as a "crisis."

THE "BOX SCORE" as issued by the White House follows:

"1. Anti-inflation program.

"A. Excess profits tax—failed to act. Ways and means committee held no meetings; permitted no administration witnesses to testify.

"B. Consumer credit controls—enacted, but for a shorter period than recommended.

"C. Bank credit controls—enacted in part.

"D. Regulate speculation in commodities—failed to act. No administration witnesses permitted to testify.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—The State department today asked Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to halt New York court action against Soviet Consul General James Lomakin until the federal government can study the "problem."

The move followed receipt of a written protest from Soviet Ambassador Panyushkin over service of habeas corpus papers on Lomakin to produce Mrs. Oksana Kosenkina in court.

'Yogi' Stifles Charges; Marries Chief Witness

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—A self-styled California "yogi" apparently escaped trial today by marrying the wealthy, 73-year-old Columbus widow he was accused of defrauding in a grand jury indictment.

Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett said that the marriage of Mrs. Anna B. Rogers, widow of a retired farmer and businessman, took place last Sunday in Reno, Nev.

She married "Dr. Ahmed Ramah, 50," whom she met in January, 1947, through a newspaper advertisement. The indictment charged she loaned him $6,000 for an automobile and later gave him $7,000 in cash for "safekeeping."

Under the law Mrs. Rogers, as Ramah's wife, cannot be made to testify against him. She was the chief prosecution witness before the grand jury.

Pay Hike OKd

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12 — The CIO United Auto Workers at Columbus' Curtiss-Wright plant voted last night to accept a general 10-cent hourly wage increase, retroactive to June 28.

Ruth Rallies In Hospital

NEW YORK, Aug. 12—Babe Ruth rallied today.

This bit of good news for countless thousands of the Homerun King's admirers was contained in an official hospital bulletin which read:

"Babe Ruth rallied this morning. His pulse is stronger. His condition is improved although still critical."

Scores of youngsters, who never saw the bambino hit a homerun, kept a constant vigil on the hospital steps anxiously asking about their idol, who is suffering from a severe throat ailment.

Except Joseph E. Chamberlain.

But — so far — Chamberlain himself hasn't heard a thing, and the first of the dozen or so prizes has yet to arrive.

Water Station Blown Up As UN Team Checks

TEL AVIV, Aug. 12—A water pumping station at Latrun, 155 miles west of Jerusalem, was blown up and partly demolished today by two explosions.

American Col. Albert Perry, of Taunton, Mass., had a narrow escape from the explosions.

The explosions occurred just as a party of United Nations observers, headed by Col. Perry, approached to check the condition of the pumping station.

The check was being carried out before a crew of Jewish repairmen were to go to work on the station to renew the flow of water to Jerusalem for the first time in three months.

In view of the Latrun explosions, the Jews countermanded an order permitting the return of 400 Arabs to two villages in the vicinity. A spokesman for the Israeli foreign office said that the blasts constituted a "glaring breach of the truce."

Eartip Returned After Accident

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—Richard Nagle, 18, lost about one third of an ear last night, but he got it back early today.

Nagle told sheriff's deputies he was driving just east of Columbus last night with two friends when he was blinded by the bright lights of an approaching car.

Nagle's auto crashed into a ditch, landed on its top, and he lost the top third of his right ear in the fracas. A passing motorist took the bruised trio to White Cross hospital where Dr. David Heydinger gave Nagle and Sheriff's Deputy Louis Riffle a medical solution.

An hour and a half after the accident, Nagle and Riffle returned to the scene, quickly found the eartip, popped it into the solution and returned to the hospital where Dr. Heydinger sewed it back on. Today the ear was practically as good as ever.

Buffeting Winds May Hit This Area Tonight

Disrupted transportation, fallen trees, damaged homes and flooded basements were left Thursday in the wake of one of the year's most violent storms in Northern Ohio.

Weather forecasters said the south half of the state may be subjected Thursday night to a lesser buffeting by high winds and rains.

A total of 2.12 inches of rain fell in Cleveland, the second largest total of the year and almost equalling the normal average of 2.77 for the month of August. The rains caused extensive damage in the sixth city but no injuries were reported.

In Toledo, winds that reached 80 miles an hour smashed power lines and unroofed many buildings.

Hundreds of workers at the Westinghouse and Empire Steel Corp. plants in Mansfield were sent home after high winds caused a power failure.

Observers said, however, that the rains generally will prove beneficial as the ground was dry enough to absorb the moisture.

They added that the storm area has moved eastward and that Ohio would have generally fair weather Friday with little temperature change.

Name-Calling Tiff Colors Dayton Dispute

DAYTON, Aug. 12—The strife-studded, 97-day strike at the Univis Lens Co., which was settled Monday continued to have repercussions today.

Strike Leader Louis Kaplan, international representative for the CIO-United Electrical Workers who engaged in a bitter, name-calling exchange with Congressionan Clare Hoffman (R-Michigan) at a congressional subcommittee hearing, was subpoenaed to appear in Washington Monday for the second time in two weeks.

Kaplan against refused to state whether he was a Communist. Leaders of the UE have refused to sign the anti-Communist affidavits required by the Taft-Hartley law.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12 — Chicago Automobile Manufacturer Preston Tucker refused to deny or affirm a report today that Howard Hughes may buy into the auto corporation.

Cuban Bandits Net $700,000

HAVANA, Aug. 12 — Cuban authorities engaged in a wide search today for 10 bandits who seized almost $700 thousand yesterday in Havana's largest bank robbery.

The loot was seized from a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada on Havana's famed Prado Boulevard just shortly after the normal closing time.

Two men wearing bogus police uniforms entered as the bank janitor was allowing a late depositor to leave. The disguised bandits were armed with submachineguns and pistols.

They took $465,500 from a vault which the bank manager was forced to open and scooped up another $197,148 from teller cages.

States' Righters Open Drive To Grab Whole Solid South

HOUSTON, Tex., Aug. 12—Dixie's new party, the States' Rights Democrats, was formally launched today with Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina as presidential candidate and Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi as the vice-presidential nominee.

Every state of the Solid South, including President Truman's home border state of Missouri, was represented at last night's session when the nominations were formally offered by Democrats of Mississippi, Alabama and South Carolina.

The States' Rights Democrats hope to win control of the Solid South's 127 electoral votes and thereby prevent either President Truman or Thomas E. Dewey from gaining a majority of the electoral college votes.

This would throw the election into Congress where the States Righters believe they could be the decisive force.

The states' righters, who bolted from the Democratic Party over President Truman's civil rights program, are launching their fight against all three parties, Democrats, Republicans and Progressives.

They called for rededication of the Democratic Party to the "principles of states' rights, home rule and local self government."

PRICES FOUND STILL HOLDING UP

'Petticoat Brigade' Grows, Although Brick Wall Looms

The "Petticoat Brigade" protesting against high meat prices continued to recruit vast numbers of housewives in a nation-wide campaign Thursday, but still there was no great dent in retail, wholesale or livestock prices.

From border to border came reports of new troops of insurgent housewives rallying against high meat prices by planning meatless meals, demonstrating before butcher shops and stockyards and organizing committees of protest.

The campaign, first started by Mrs. R. D. Vaughn, a 71-year-old Dallas, Tex., grandmother, was extended even to milk prices, but the protests seemed to be striking against a stone wall.

Mrs. Vaughn herself was almost ready to admit defeat. After making thousands off telephone calls to recruit new forces and giving her voice to the cause, she found herself on the casualty list—a victim of a sore throat.

Prices on store counters, in wholesale markets and at live stockyards still remained about the same or, in some instances, even advanced.

In New York, housewives in the Bronx resumed parades in front of butcher shops, some carrying placards announcing their protests, others wheeling baby carriages decorated with protest signs.

Chicago women were ready to

CHICAGO, Aug. 12 — Chicago Automobile Manufacturer Preston Tucker refused to deny or affirm a report today that Howard Hughes may buy into the auto corporation.

Tucker, told of the report, declared:

"I don't think I can comment either way. I'll admit certain deals are pending, but I won't deny or affirm that Howard Hughes is coming in."

Cuban Bandits Net $700,000

HAVANA, Aug. 12 — Cuban authorities engaged in a wide search today for 10 bandits who seized almost $700 thousand yesterday in Havana's largest bank robbery.

The loot was seized from a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada on Havana's famed Prado Boulevard just shortly after the normal closing time.

Two men wearing bogus police uniforms entered as the bank janitor was allowing a late depositor to leave. The disguised bandits were armed with submachineguns and pistols.

They took $465,500 from a vault which the bank manager was forced to open and scooped up another $197,148 from teller cages.

States' Righters Open Drive To Grab Whole Solid South

HOUSTON, Tex., Aug. 12—Dixie's new party, the States' Rights Democrats, was formally launched today with Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina as presidential candidate and Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi as the vice-presidential nominee.

Every state of the Solid South, including President Truman's home border state of Missouri, was represented at last night's session when the nominations were formally offered by Democrats of Mississippi, Alabama and South Carolina.

The States' Rights Democrats hope to win control of the Solid South's 127 electoral votes and thereby prevent either President Truman or Thomas E. Dewey from gaining a majority of the electoral college votes.

This would throw the election into Congress where the States Righters believe they could be the decisive force.

The states' righters, who bolted from the Democratic Party over President Truman's civil rights program, are launching their fight against all three parties, Democrats, Republicans and Progressives.

They called for rededication of the Democratic Party to the "principles of states' rights, home rule and local self government."

'Petticoat Brigade' Grows, Although Brick Wall Looms

The "Petticoat Brigade" protesting against high meat prices continued to recruit vast numbers of housewives in a nation-wide campaign Thursday, but still there was no great dent in retail, wholesale or livestock prices.

From border to border came reports of new troops of insurgent housewives rallying against high meat prices by planning meatless meals, demonstrating before butcher shops and stockyards and organizing committees of protest.

The campaign, first started by Mrs. R. D. Vaughn, a 71-year-old Dallas, Tex., grandmother, was extended even to milk prices, but the protests seemed to be striking against a stone wall.

Mrs. Vaughn herself was almost ready to admit defeat. After making thousands off telephone calls to recruit new forces and giving her voice to the cause, she found herself on the casualty list—a victim of a sore throat.

Prices on store counters, in wholesale markets and at live stockyards still remained about the same or, in some instances, even advanced.

In New York, housewives in the Bronx resumed parades in front of butcher shops, some carrying placards announcing their protests, others wheeling baby carriages decorated with protest signs.

Summer Days Hard On Dogs, Claim

Owners were advised this week to let their pets take life easy during the hot days of Summer.

ANOTHER veterinarian stated that heat exhaustion has already caused a disturbing number of deaths among pets this Summer. "The high toll from heat prostration reported by veterinarians and anti-cruelty groups shows convincingly that owners need more information on the summertime care of animals."

In a joint statement, veterinians offered these suggestions:

Don't subject pets to strenuous exercise during the heat of the day. Let them loaf around, preferably in a cool spot under the porch;

Don't expect animals to have a hearty appetite in hot weather. Probably the best time for Summer feeding is around 8 o'clock in the evening;

Special Paper Is Urged For Wrapping Fowl

To assure that poultry of various classifications is properly held in locker plants or freezers, it is advisable that the fowl be wrapped in waterproof, moistureproof paper.

Latest scientific methods call for enclosing the fowl in a strong mesh fabric, known as stockinet, which keeps the prepared locker paper tightly pressed around the chicken, thus eliminating all air pockets inside the wrapping and preventing the paper from becoming loose at any time.

Poultrymen and farmers with a surplus of poultry have found it profitable to place some of the birds, as well as game fowl, in storage for their own consumption as well as sale to local markets when prices become higher.

Considerable demand has been found for ducks, geese and turkeys as well as for chickens.

During the past few years some poultry raisers have found an excellent market for smoked fowl and a most satisfactory market price.

Only quality fowls should be so stored and handled, and then only when proper wrapping material is utilized and proper storage facilities are available.

Alimony, Legal Fees Granted

Pending the outcome of a divorce suit filed by Mary M. Johnson in Pickaway County common pleas court, George L. Johnson has been ordered to pay temporary alimony and part of her legal fees.

Judge William D. Radcliff set $50 per week as temporary alimony and a sum of $75 to be paid Mrs. Johnson for litigation.

Mrs. Johnson's petition, which accuses her husband of gross neglect, states they were married Oct. 14, 1943, and that they are the parents of seven children.

Deputies Eye Orient's Romeo, Juliet Case

Pickaway County authorities are holding a 47-year-old Lancaster man for investigation in what Deputy Sheriff Vern L. Pontious has termed a "Romeo and Juliet" affair.

Pontious and Deputy Carl Radcliff were summoned to an Orient home Wednesday following a desperate telephone call from "Juliet's" daughter who suggested mayhem may have been committed.

"Romeo" was reported by the deputies to be in a drunken condition and that he climbed onto "Juliet's" porch roof and forced his way into the house through a screened window.

The Lancaster man was not just a passerby. The deputies said common pleas records show he had filed a $3,000 breach of promise suit last December against his "Juliet."

His petition claimed she had promised to marry him, but when the appointed time came, she backed down on her vow. She filed a demurrer to his action admitting the promise, but claimed it was no cause for action.

Wallace Aides Making Ballot

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—The Wallace candidates for the presidential elector today appeared likely to win a place on the Ohio ballot in November.

Thirty of the 49 county election boards which have been checking the petitions for validity of signatures have reported back to Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel.

Aide in the office pointed out that the invalid signatures were running considerably less than a third of the number checked and stated that "they'll probably make it."

The Wallace backers submitted more than 36,000 petitions, only 23,038 of which need to be valid.

Official Seeks Erring Lad, 16

John Kerns, Pickaway County probation officer, Thursday was enroute to Elizabethtown, Ky., to return a 16-year-old Circleville youth who has been confined to county supervision.

In a telephone call from the chief of police of Elizabethtown, the officer reportedly told Judge Sterling M. Lamb that the boy had admitted stealing $116 from an Alabama filling station.

On numerous occasions, Judge Lamb said, the boy had escaped from the Childrens Home, from his father's care and that he spent last Summer working with a circus.

Stewardess Cited For Saving 15

SYDNEY, N. S., Aug. 12—An heroic stewardess saved the lives of 15 persons today when a Trans-Canada airliner suddenly burst into flames as it taxied down the Reserve airport, Cape Breton, runway.

With flames licking the passage way and smoke filling the inside of the big North Star plane, the stewardess, Rita Myers of Montreal, got the passengers together and directed them to safety.

None of the 11 passengers or the four crew members was injured.

Winchester Road Being Reopened

The Circleville - Winchester road was to be reopened temporarily Thursday, County Engineer Henry T. McCrady announced.

Engineers closed the route to traffic last month when a near cloud burst damaged the bridge and abutments.

McCrady said his department is comtemplating construction of a new bridge to replace the structure now in use.

Organist Asks Big Alimony

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12 — Mrs. Mildred Biddle Miller, 39, socially prominent blind organist, is asking $1,500 monthly alimony from her husband, William Henry Miller, retired businessman of suburban Shaker Heights.

Mrs. Miller charged in a motion yesterday that her husband abandoned her in Florida. Blind since 1941, she said the alimony was necessary to employ a companion-secretary and a cook-housekeeper.

She estimated her husband's net income at $50,000 annually. Her divorce action against Miller was filed in Cuyahoga County common pleas court several weeks ago.

Youngster Set For Celebration

ZANESVILLE, Aug. 12—Little Davey Hook of Zanesville is having a double celebration today in Wichita, Kan. It's his eighth birthday—and the halfway mark in his fight for normal speech.

Davey was sent to the Institute of Logopedics by the Eagles Lodge last May for training to overcome a speech defect which made him unintelligible to his teachers and classmates and kept him in the first grade.

Reports now indicate that Davey is whipping his trouble and will soon be able to return home and to read aloud before his class.

kin's protest as paraphrased by the State department.

This translation declared that the habeas corpus writ contained this "entirely inadmissable assumption:"

"That the consul general of the USSR could detain and imprison a citizen of the country which he represents."

* * *

THE ASSUMPTION was called "incompatible with the dignity of a Soviet consulate, the necessity for the observance of which derives from international customs and the norms of international law."

The State department said the Russian ambassador also declared "delivery of the writ was in complete contradiction of rights which foreign consulates enjoy and should enjoy."

Lomakin had flouted a New York supreme court order to produce Mrs. Kosenkina, now held incommunicado at the consulate.

The defiance of Lomakin became official when Justice Samuel Dickstein opened a hearing, and witnesses began to testify that the woman teacher was in terror of her life of being returned to Russia and regards her native land as "a prison."

There was no sign of Lomakin or any of his aides in the courtroom, nor was Mrs. Kosenkina present. She has been held at the consulate since she was taken by consular agents from the farm run by Countless Alexandra Tolstoy for Russian displaced persons near Nyack, last Saturday.

Public information officers at the field said the craft plunged to the ground and burst into flames shortly after taking off about dawn on a photo mission.

Driver Fined; Another Bound To Grand Jury

A 34-year-old Mansfield man was fined a total of $125 and costs on two counts in mayor's court Wednesday while a Pickaway Countian was bond over to the grand jury after pleading innocent to a traffic violation charge.

Raymond Allen of Mansfield was fined $100 and costs by Mayor Thurman I. Miller for drunken driving on Route 56, and an additional fine of $25 and costs was levied against the man for driving without an operator's license.

James Reichelderfer of near Tarlton was bound over to the grand jury on a $100 bond in the court, accused of failing to yield the right of way on U. S. Route 23. The affidavit stated the man had failed to give way to passing traffic after a proper signal had been sounded.

Both men were arrested by State Highway Patrolman C. E. Wells.

New recruits are springing up throughout Colorado where the strike is scheduled to get under way next Monday.

The practice of having two meatless days a week was becoming widespread in San Francisco. Some dealers reported that business was off from normla but saw no immediate drop in prices unless the campaign continues for two or three months.

In retail stores of the Chicago area, the cheapest pork chops were selling for 89 cents a pound and up, smoked butts 85 cents, lamb 75 cents, pot roasts 69 cents and sliced bacon 57 cents. Most meats were selling around $1 a pound. Chickens were cheap at 49 cents and up.

Most butchers admitted they were hard-pressed by irate housewives; and some talked about going out of business. Many meat market employes even face unemployment if the meatless campaign continues.

Next 2 Weeks To Tell Tale Of Polio In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—The Ohio polio count rose to 296 today compared to 81 last year and State Health Director John D. Porterfield predicted the next two weeks would determine whether 1948 would equal the record number of cases set last year.

Twenty-one new cases were reported to the health department today—five in Cuyahoga County, four in Franklin, and two each in Marion, Lorain and Logan Counties.

Single cases were reported in Putnam, Van Wert, Seneca, Delaware, Clark and Hancock.

The new polio reports bring the totals in "sensitive" Marion and Putnam Counties to 27 and 22 respectively. Cuyahoga has reported 34 cases—more than any other county—but this is not considered alarming, considering the large population there.

Dr. Porterfield pointed out that limited experience in Ohio showed if there was a swift rise in the early polio counts there tended to be a low total for the season. Conversly, a late start would mean a great number of polio cases before the end of the year. He said:

"For instance last year the great increase did not begin until September and Ohio had a total of 1,480 cases—the largest in its records."

This year the rapid rise began about the middle of July and Porterfield said the reports in the next two weeks should tell the story.

Town Asks Herbert Aid

Pomeroy Would Oust Its Mayor

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—Governor Thomas Herbert was asked today by the Pomeroy village council to remove Delmar A. Canaday from his position as mayor of the village.

The formal request to the governor charged Canaday with malfeasance, nonfeasance and misfeasance of duty; conduct unbecoming a duly-elected official of a municipality; making purchases without approval of the council and withholding public information.

The council further charged the mayor with fining defendants under laws which do not exist and without giving them a fair trial; with misuse of public vehicles; changing warrants made out by arresting officers; obstructing justice; and threatening bodily harm to at least two council members.

Canaday has been at swords-point with the council since his election last November.

DURING his first month in office, he announced his candidacy for the U. S. Congress, tore up a proposed one percent income tax ordinance at a mass meeting and resigned.

He resigned again later, mentioned it several times to councilmen and asked for several months leave of absence which he later refused to take.

However, there was a technicality involved in each of Canaday's resignations and he did not miss a day of service.

Official Seeks Erring Lad, 16

John Kerns, Pickaway County probation officer, Thursday was enroute to Elizabethtown, Ky., to return a 16-year-old Circleville youth who has been confined to county supervision.

In a telephone call from the chief of police of Elizabethtown, the officer reportedly told Judge Sterling M. Lamb that the boy had admitted stealing $116 from an Alabama filling station.

On numerous occasions, Judge Lamb said, the boy had escaped from the Childrens Home, from his father's care and that he spent last Summer working with a circus.

Stewardess Cited For Saving 15

SYDNEY, N. S., Aug. 12—An heroic stewardess saved the lives of 15 persons today when a Trans-Canada airliner suddenly burst into flames as it taxied down the Reserve airport, Cape Breton, runway.

With flames licking the passage way and smoke filling the inside of the big North Star plane, the stewardess, Rita Myers of Montreal, got the passengers together and directed them to safety.

None of the 11 passengers or the four crew members was injured.

Winchester Road Being Reopened

The Circleville - Winchester road was to be reopened temporarily Thursday, County Engineer Henry T. McCrady announced.

Engineers closed the route to traffic last month when a near cloud burst damaged the bridge and abutments.

McCrady said his department is comtemplating construction of a new bridge to replace the structure now in use.

Lt. Col. Nesamayev, deputy Soviet commander in Berlin, accused German officils of "negligence and sabotage" in food distribution and said some of them will be charged before military tribunals.

American officials reiterated their belief the Russians will cut off Western telephone and telegraph communications soon because Soviet rerouting of their own lines through the western sectors is almost completed.

The admission of political revolt in the Soviet sector was disclosed in Berlin newspapers licensed by the Russians.

Mass arrests still are going on in a purge of Christian Democratic and Liberal Party members by the rival Communist Socialist Unity Party.

Organist Asks Big Alimony

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12 — Mrs. Mildred Biddle Miller, 39, socially prominent blind organist, is asking $1,500 monthly alimony from her husband, William Henry Miller, retired businessman of suburban Shaker Heights.

Mrs. Miller charged in a motion yesterday that her husband abandoned her in Florida. Blind since 1941, she said the alimony was necessary to employ a companion-secretary and a cook-housekeeper.

She estimated her husband's net income at $50,000 annually. Her divorce action against Miller was filed in Cuyahoga County common pleas court several weeks ago.

Youngster Set For Celebration

ZANESVILLE, Aug. 12—Little Davey Hook of Zanesville is having a double celebration today in Wichita, Kan. It's his eighth birthday—and the halfway mark in his fight for normal speech.

Davey was sent to the Institute of Logopedics by the Eagles Lodge last May for training to overcome a speech defect which made him unintelligible to his teachers and classmates and kept him in the first grade.

Reports now indicate that Davey is whipping his trouble and will soon be able to return home and to read aloud before his class.

Yankee Stalls Envoy Walkout

BELGRADE, Aug. 12—The American delegate at the Danube conference today averted—temporarily at least—a walkout of the Anglo-French delegations.

U. S. Ambassador Cavendish Cannon wants to avoid a spectacular break at least until he sees how the important Big Four talks in Moscow on Germany are progressing.

At the request of the American government it was understood that the Anglo-French delegations were instructed by their governments not to bolt the "free navigation" parley except in agreement with Cannon.

kin's protest as paraphrased by the State department.

This translation declared that the habeas corpus writ contained this "entirely inadmissable assumption:"

"That the consul general of the USSR could detain and imprison a citizen of the country which he represents."

* * *

THE ASSUMPTION was called "incompatible with the dignity of a Soviet consulate, the necessity for the observance of which derives from international customs and the norms of international law."

The State department said the Russian ambassador also declared "delivery of the writ was in complete contradiction of rights which foreign consulates enjoy and should enjoy."

Lomakin had flouted a New York supreme court order to produce Mrs. Kosenkins now held incommunicado at the consulate.

The defiance of Lomakin became official when Justice Samuel Dickstein opened a hearing, and witnesses began to testify that the woman teacher was in terror of her life of being returned to Russia and regards her native land as "a prison."

There was no sign of Lomakin or any of his aides in the courtroom, nor was Mrs. Kosenkina present. She has been held at the consulate since she was taken by consular agents from the farm run by Countless Alexandra Tolstoy for Russian displaced persons near Nyack, last Saturday.

Child-Killer Said Insane

CINCINNATI, Aug. 12— Three alienists declared today that Harry H. Robertson, 33, of Richmond, Va., was insane on July 16 when he threw eight-year-old Patricia Jackson to her death from the upper level of a Cincinnati viaduct.

They reported to Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Judge Nelson Schwab yesterday that they considered Robertson legally "not to be responsible for his acts."

5 Fliers Die In Plane Crash

TOPEKA, Kans., Aug. 12— Five men were killed and two others injured seriously today when a four-motored Air Force plane crashed and burned at the Air Force base here.

All were Air Force personnel. Identification was withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Public information officers at the field said the craft plunged to the ground and burst into flames shortly after taking off about dawn on a photo mission.

Driver Fined; Another Bound To Grand Jury

A 34-year-old Mansfield man was fined a total of $125 and costs on two counts in mayor's court Wednesday while a Pickaway Countian was bond over to the grand jury after pleading innocent to a traffic violation charge.

Raymond Allen of Mansfield was fined $100 and costs by Mayor Thurman I. Miller for drunken driving on Route 56, and an additional fine of $25 and costs was levied against the man for driving without an operator's license.

James Reichelderfer of near Tarlton was bound over to the grand jury on a $100 bond in the court, accused of failing to yield the right of way on U. S. Route 23. The affidavit stated the man had failed to give way to passing traffic after a proper signal had been sounded.

Both men were arrested by State Highway Patrolman C. E. Wells.

march today to the stockyards area to carry their war against the meat packers. They also were busy organizing "Beat The High Cost Of Living" committees throughout the Chicago area and were making chain telephone calls urging meatless meals.

New recruits are springing up throughout Colorado where the strike is scheduled to get under way next Monday.

The practice of having two meatless days a week was becoming widespread in San Francisco. Some dealers reported that business was off from normla but saw no immediate drop in prices unless the campaign continues for two or three months.

In retail stores of the Chicago area, the cheapest pork chops were selling for 89 cents a pound and up, smoked butts 85 cents, lamb 75 cents, pot roasts 69 cents and sliced bacon 57 cents. Most meats were selling around $1 a pound. Chickens were cheap at 49 cents and up.

Most butchers admitted they were hard-pressed by irate housewives; and some talked about going out of business. Many meat market employes even face unemployment if the meatless campaign continues.

Root said the couple set the 10-day limit, "but just to make sure, I tacked on a $500 bond as added incentive."

Next 2 Weeks To Tell Tale Of Polio In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—The Ohio polio count rose to 296 today compared to 81 last year and State Health Director John D. Porterfield predicted the next two weeks would determine whether 1948 would equal the record number of cases set last year.

Twenty-one new cases were reported to the health department today—five in Cuyahoga County, four in Franklin, and two each in Marion, Lorain and Logan Counties.

Single cases were reported in Putnam, Van Wert, Seneca, Delaware, Clark and Hancock.

The new polio reports bring the totals in "sensitive" Marion and Putnam Counties to 27 and 22 respectively. Cuyahoga has reported 34 cases—more than any other county—but this is not considered alarming, considering the large population there.

Dr. Porterfield pointed out that limited experience in Ohio showed if there was a swift rise in the early polio counts there tended to be a low total for the season. Conversly, a late start would mean a great number of polio cases before the end of the year. He said:

"For instance last year the great increase did not begin until September and Ohio had a total of 1,480 cases—the largest in its records."

This year the rapid rise began about the middle of July and Porterfield said the reports in the next two weeks should tell the story.

Town Asks Herbert Aid

Pomeroy Would Oust Its Mayor

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—Governor Thomas Herbert was asked today by the Pomeroy village council to remove Delmar A. Canaday from his position as mayor of the village.

The formal request to the governor charged Canaday with malfeasance, nonfeasance and misfeasance of duty; conduct unbecoming a duly-elected official of a municipality; making purchases without approval of the council and withholding public information.

The council further charged the mayor with fining defendants under laws which do not exist and without giving them a fair trial; with misuse of public vehicles; changing warrants made out by arresting officers; obstructing justice; and threatening bodily harm to at least two council members.

Canaday has been at swords-point with the council since his election last November.

* * *

DURING his first month in office, he announced his candidacy for the U. S. Congress, tore up a proposed one percent income tax ordinance at a mass meeting and resigned.

He resigned again later, mentioned it several times to councilmen and asked for several months leave of absence which he later refused to take.

However, there was a technicality involved in each of Canaday's resignations and he did not miss a day of service.

Parents Of Deceased Vets Getting More Pay

The Veterans Administration has upped the limit of income the parent of a deceased veteran may receive and still be considered as dependent.

James P. Shea, local veterans service officer, pointed to the new VA regulation which sets top income at $135 if the parents are living together; $80 if there is but one parent or if the parents are not living together; and an additional $35 for each member of the family incapacitated or under legal age.

Parents of a veteran are eligible for benefits only if the veteran's death was attributed service connected. This means due to a disability incurred in or aggravated by military service.

The VA will determine dependency if the father or mother does not have enough income to provide reasonably for themselves and dependent members of the family.

Shea said dependency also is determined upon consideration given property owned by the dependent. The VA, he said, studies the possibility as to whether the property may be sold in whole or part to provide maintenance.

This point was emphasized by the service officer. The fact that the veteran made habitual contributions to the family income does not constitute dependency. It is, however, considered with other evidence.

Remarriage of a parent does not disallow entitlement to a claim, Shea said. But unless there is evidence to the contrary, dependency will be considered stopped.

Dependency does not have to be shown at the time of the veteran's death. It may be proved at any time during the life of the parent at which time compensation payments will be started, Shea declared.

The man with a nestegg of U. S. Savings Bonds does not have to worry about tomorrow.

Shea said dependency also is determined upon consideration given property owned by the dependent. The VA, he said, studies the possibility as to whether the property may be sold in whole or part to provide maintenance.

This point was emphasized by the service officer. The fact that the veteran made habitual contributions to the family income does not constitute dependency. It is, however, considered with other evidence.

Remarriage of a parent does not disallow entitlement to a claim, Shea said. But unless there is evidence to the contrary, dependency will be considered stopped.

Dependency does not have to be shown at the time of the veteran's death. It may be proved at any time during the life of the parent at which time compensation payments will be started, Shea declared.

State, Local Taxes Up 10-Fold Since Gay 90s

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—The government has reported that your state and local taxes have increased ten-fold since the Gay Ninety days of nickel beers, free lunches and—low taxes.

The Census Bureau, in a historical finance review, showed that state and local taxes per person have risen from $7.95 in 1890 to $78.98 in 1946.

The bureau adds that most of the increase occurred before World War II. For example in 1942, the per capita amount was $71.38 compared with $50.93 in 1932 and only $13.90 back in 1913.

All this rise, the bureau says, happened despite a population doubling since the Nineties.

The most remarkable tax event, according to the review was a minor drop between 1932 and 1946 in property taxes, which the bureau described as "the traditional mainstay of local governments."

* * *

THOSE TAXES had provided nearly nine-tenths of all state and local tax revenue in 1890 as against 46 percent in 1946.

In the way of federal aid to states and local governments, the report shows it equalled about $800 million in 1942, 1945 and 1946 compared to less than $10 million before World War I.

Old age assistance accounted for a large part of the aid.

State tax income from 1932 to 1946 more than tripled while local taxes jumped a very small amount. The report said the states, however, have passed along about $2 billion annually during recent years in aid to local setups.

Livestock Price, Volume Drops; Strike To Blame?

Pickaway County Livestock Cooperative Association stockyard sales apparently were affected slightly by the ever spreading "meat strike" being staged by consumers over the nation when both volume and prices took a slight hitch in this week's market.

Although total volume of sales at the Wednesday auction dropped but 46 head, 873 head marketed this week as compared to 919 auctioned last week, the more expensive types of meat for the dinner table failed to meet last week's posted volume.

Prices in nearly all categories of sales dropped, with exception of the heavier grades of hogs, which remained steady.

Hogs receipts showed the most drop in volume Wednesday, with a decrease of 150 head when 325 were marketed as compared to the 475 sold last week.

Cattle receipts took a drop of 16 head this week when 231 were auctioned off as compared to the 247 sold last Wednesday.

The calves receipts took up part of the slack during this week's sales, increasing 55 head when 131 reached the selling block Wednesday as compared to the 76 sold last week.

Sheep and lamb receipts also took a slight jump Wednesday, an increase of 65 head noticed when 186 head were marketed as compared to the 121 auctioned last Wednesday.

Following is a complete report of the Wednesday livestock transactions:

CATTLE RECEIPTS — 231 head — Steers and heifers, good no choice cattle on sale; steers and heifers, medium to good 26-33.25; steers and heifers, common to medium 17-28; cows, common to good 18-23.60, cows, canners to common 13-18; cow—by head—90; bulls 18-26.60.

12 Advantages On Grass Silage Given Dairymen

Twelve positive advantages that grass silage offers dairy farmers were compiled as a result of tests conducted by Wisconsin FFA chapters and Kraft. Some of the decided advantages were:

Grass silage preserves as much as 30 per cent more protein of alfalfa.

There need be no loss of the crop through rainy weather at haying time.

Crop may be saved in a more orderly manner and labor distributed more evenly.

A grass silage program helps in control of weeds because it destroys the viability of weed seeds.

A grass silage program makes the control of erosion and insect pests easier.

It can be used to preserve the feed value of weedy crops.

Grass silage makes for more vitamins and more color in winter milk and butter than either corn silage or sun-cured hay.

Elevators Found Great Aid To Modern Farms

Elevators are becoming as common on farms as they are in city department stores. They are, however, of a different kind—and not used for the same purposes. Unless, of course, city stores have started conveying farm produce from the sidewalk into ninth or tenth story "mows".

Farmers began to think seriously about elevators and conveyors during the last war, and they've been doing something about them ever since. Many built their own equipment. Others bought commercial models. The source matters little—it's what they can do that counts most.

All-purpose elevators, either portable or stationary are capable of elevating to desired heights baled, chopped or loose hay, ear corn, root crops, shelled corn, ground grain and forage.

They do these "back-breaking" chores easily, and all day long without complaining. However, before you build or buy an elevator be sure you know for what it is to be used. That knowledge will determine the size and type best suited for your needs.

Costs of operation vary somewhat, but, in general, farmers can figure on it taking from 1-10 to five kilo-watt hours of power to elevate 1,000 bushels of grain with an elevator, run by a five horsepower motor.

Wildgoose Chase Worth $20,592?

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12—Mrs. Mabel A. O'Light, attractive Rome, N. Y., brunette, is seeking $20,592 today from a Cleveland publishing company which, she alleged, sent her to Coral Gables, Fla., on a wildgoose chase.

Mrs. O'Light charged that she was sent to Florida to sell magazines, but that when she arrived she found no job nor any agent of the publishing firm, the L. J. Bullard Co.

She said she was forced to hitch-hike home when her money ran out. Her petition charged that she was abused and mistreated on some of the rides given her and was subjected to numerous insults.

On one occasion, the petition stated, she was forced to jump from an automobile. She alleged that the arches of both her feet were flattened when she fell.

The Missouri Indians were Sioux of that name. The state of Missouri was named for them.

Landlord Held In Man's Death

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12—Cleveland police held a 34-year-old landlord today pending a coroner's report in connection with the death of his tenant, Charles Pulley, 36.

Pulley died late yesterday in City hospital some three weeks after having struck his head during a fight with the landlord.

Pulley collapsed on the floor of his bedroom yesterday morning, and died without regaining consciousness.

The landlord told police the fight began after he criticized his tenant for drinking and causing disturbances in the house. He said that when Pulley grabbed him around the throat, he struck him, knocking him down several steps from the porch to the sidewalk.

The coroner's report was awaited to determine whether Pulley died as a result of the blow or from other causes.

Farmers began to think seriously about elevators and conveyors during the last war, and they've been doing something about them ever since. Many built their own equipment. Others bought commercial models. The source matters little—it's what they can do that counts most.

All-purpose elevators, either portable or stationary are capable of elevating to desired heights baled, chopped or loose hay, ear corn, root crops, shelled corn, ground grain and forage.

They do these "back-breaking" chores easily, and all day long without complaining. However, before you build or buy an elevator be sure you know for what it is to be used. That knowledge will determine the size and type best suited for your needs.

Costs of operation vary somewhat, but, in general, farmers can figure on it taking from 1-10 to five kilo-watt hours of power to elevate 1,000 bushels of grain with an elevator, run by a five horsepower motor.

In succeeding Premier King as head of the party, Laurent will automatically succeed King as Prime Minister when the latter retires. Mrs. Laurent is in the center. (International)

Wildgoose Chase Worth $20,592?

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12—Mrs. Mabel A. O'Light, attractive Rome, N. Y., brunette, is seeking $20,592 today from a Cleveland publishing company which, she alleged, sent her to Coral Gables, Fla., on a wildgoose chase.

Mrs. O'Light charged that she was sent to Florida to sell magazines, but that when she arrived she found no job nor any agent of the publishing firm, the L. J. Bullard Co.

She said she was forced to hitch-hike home when her money ran out. Her petition charged that she was abused and mistreated on some of the rides given her and was subjected to numerous insults.

On one occasion, the petition stated, she was forced to jump from an automobile. She alleged that the arches of both her feet were flattened when she fell.

The Missouri Indians were Sioux of that name. The state of Missouri was named for them.

Landlord Held In Man's Death

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12—Cleveland police held a 34-year-old landlord today pending a coroner's report in connection with the death of his tenant, Charles Pulley, 36.

Pulley died late yesterday in City hospital some three weeks after having struck his head during a fight with the landlord.

Pulley collapsed on the floor of his bedroom yesterday morning, and died without regaining consciousness.

The landlord told police the fight began after he criticized his tenant for drinking and causing disturbances in the house. He said that when Pulley grabbed him around the throat, he struck him, knocking him down several steps from the porch to the sidewalk.

The coroner's report was awaited to determine whether Pulley died as a result of the blow or from other causes.

Current Commie Hearings Putting G-Men On Spot

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—Although there has been surprisingly little criticism of its operations, the government agency which has been most specifically put on the spot by the congressional Communist hearings has been the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

That is not to say that there have been even the faintest hints of Red infiltration into the ranks of the G-men (the angriest congressman has not suggested that), but it is to point out that a terrific extra load has fallen on the shoulders of the FBI.

It has brought about a lot of unheralded changes in the organization.

For one thing, as far back as several months ago the G-men had to turn thei rchief attention away from other federal crime problems and concentrate on investigating government workers and job applicants with an eye to Communist affiliations.

To get an idea as to the size of the job, it is only necessary to point out that there were more than two million men and women requiring at least a "spot check" from the outset. Those were the ones already employed but whose records had been given only a cursory glance at time of employment.

* * *

IN ADDITION, each day's total of job applicants usually ran into several thousand individual cases—which also must receive a fairly complete loyalty check.

What really has made it tough for the G-men has been that the laws under which they were forced to operate were vague and somewhat controversial at best. Above all, they had to avoid charges of using "Gestapo tactics," of indulging in political persecution and of witch-hunting.

The number of cases to be handled made it necessary at first to merely flash them through a cross-indexing fingerprint and quick-check system. This profiled them in rapid-fire fashion against the bureau's criminal, Communist and associated identification files.

Whenever a connection was caught, the case was "flagged"—that is, tagged for a more complete investigation.

This might be caused by membership in a Commie-front organization, association with known or suspected Communists or almost anything at all which tended to arouse someone's suspicion somewhere along the line.

Then the investigation got really tough, for in many instances the district FBI men were well known to all the people in their cities, communities and areas. This meant that, if criticism of their tactics was to be avoided, they had to operate by the most roundabout and devious means possible in conducting the investigations.

In some cases, this was so patently impossible that footloose agents from outside were sent in to handle the local questioning. This occasioned a terrific amount of personnel shifting throughout the country.

* * *

IN ADDITION, FBI chiefs in Washington were forced to pull operatives off various other types of work and concentrate them on checking the files for the big job. Experts in a score of fields had to forget their "specialties" and concentrate on the loyalty probe.

If the task were tough before the congressional hearings got underway, it was made doubly so by the publicity which has attended them ever since. For example, FBI files were brought in on a certain west coast witness recently appearing before one committee.

As soon as those files were made even partially public, the usefulness of the two FBI men in that distant city ended—insofar as future Communistic probing was concerned. Even though not named in the hearings, they were known locally and thus pretty well handcuffed as far as further efficiency in that area was concerned.

They have been transferred to new positions in the east, and "new" agents have taken over their old job.

So it has gone since the loyalty probes got underway. In some six months, approximately five thousand full-dress investigations of government workers have been completed—but, as one G-man said, "that's only a drop in the bucket."

NEW PRIME MINISTER

A LAWYER of long private practice, pressed into political service during the war, is to be Canada's new prime minister. The public life of Louis Stephen St. Laurent, new leader of the National Liberal party, began in 1941.

He entered politics then only at the urgent request of the now retiring prime minister, William Lyon Mackenzie King, who wanted his help in the trying war period. In that short time he achieved such standing in his party that almost from the moment Mr. King announced his intention to retire there was small doubt among the politically wise of Canada as to who would be the successor.

Few will envy him the task he takes up. Being a French Canadian, he is well able to understand and perhaps to cope with the growing problem of touchy relations between Canadians of French and English tongue. His country, like its southern neighbor, faces uncertain economic prospects. His government has undertaken to accept as a new province the colony of Newfoundland, which 15 years ago had to give up dominion status because of financial troubles.

A busy year is ahead for the new prime minister of Canada, and at the end of it his party must face a major test of its strength in general elections. It would not be an attractive outlook for a man of faint heart.

ITALY IN AFRICA

"NOT ON any account." So the inhabitants of Libya say when asked if they would be willing to have another experience of Italian rule. A four-power commission of the United States, Great Britain, France and Russia has just rendered reports, each to its own government, agreeing on that. Some would like independence, some a trusteeship either of Great Britain or of the United States.

Italy had but few colonies, and those were regions of meager possibilities. Add to that Italy's own poverty, and it is easy to see why the Italian areas in North Africa have remained largely undeveloped. And the Italians, despite their great talents, have had so much difficulty in getting a tolerable government of their own that it is easy to understand why their colonial experiment has on the whole failed.

For the next few years it is probable that Italy will have plenty of house-cleaning to do at home, and will not miss her former colonies.

As for the female who won that tobacco-spittin' bout in West Virginia—maybe there ought to be a law.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Did you ever watch an electrician do a job by slow motion? I often wonder whether they carry stop-watches to guide them to do the least possible work during the longest possible time at the highest possible wages? If one lets one of these highwaymen into his house, he mortgages his future. That is one of the main reasons why there is a housing shortage in this country. The contractor, who is responsible to the payer, stands about shaking his head in disgust. He has no rights in the matter; the union determines what is an efficient operation. But the union does not pay the bill.

Have you recently bought an automobile? Was it slapped together so that you had plentiful repairs during the first five hundred miles? True, you are guaranteed and the company sends you a check to cover repairs. But what about your time? What about being stuck on the road, miles from nowhere, with a car that is absolutely new but has a broken carburetor or an air purifier with the top loose or one of a thousand other defects? Management can quarrel with the unions but it cannot establish old-time efficient operations. It has to be gentle with the incompetent, the inconsiderate, the inefficient.

Did you ever complain to the telephone operators, particularly the long-distance gals who used to be the pride of the United States, because they cut you off? Where is the renowned efficiency of this best of all systems? They have had too many strikes.

The other day I called up a store to ask about a water pump. A girl went into a rigamarole as to whether I wanted to buy the pump, or order from the catalogue. I said, "I wanted a pump."

"I know that," she replied, "but do you want it on the floor or from the catalogue."

"Look, miss," I said, "I want a pump. Get me one from the catalogue, from the floor, from the warehouse, from Chicago, Philadelphia, or from General Wood himself, but get me a man who sells a pump."

"Don't shout at me," she said angrily.

"A pump! A kingdom for a pump," I wept.

So she told me to call another number.

Finally, I got a man and, in a two-minute conversation over the telephone, I bought the pump, which was in my possession as soon as we got up to the store.

The first girl might have lost that sale, but what can management do? If they criticize her, she will accuse management of shouting at her even if they whisper that she is losing customers.

If all management went on strike when it cannot operate efficiently and if the public stopped buying when it finds itself abused, this nonsense of inefficiency and featherbedding and just plain blackmailing would soon cease. The time has come to strike back.

Looks like Tito didn't study Communism quite long enough. He didn't learn to be a good boy.

The year 1948 probably will be remembered as the time of new parties and the New Look. Which will last longer?

Home prices are reported higher in June than ever before. We wouldn't have thought it possible.

Britain's Labor government has been having labor troubles.

DIET AND HEALTH

Women at the Change of Life

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IT has long been a puzzle why some women should suffer so severely during the change of life while others have practically no trouble at all. Admittedly, the glandular changes occurring at this time demand a readjustment of the entire body, but since the changes themselves are the same for all women, modern science believes that the variation in their effects is due to differences in the type of nervous system and its ability to withstand stress and strain.

A woman who is highly sensitive and easily upset may have symptoms early during the change of life, often before the periods stop. In fact, she may get similar symptoms during each monthly period.

Placid Woman

On the other hand, the stable, placid woman may go through the change of life without hardly any symptoms at all.

It is also interesting to note that women who tend to be gloomy and depressed at the time of the regular monthly periods will have similar symptoms at the time of the change of life. Those who are jittery or irritable and subject to headache or stomach upsets will usually find these symptoms more noticeable at the time of the change. In short, basic weaknesses which have revealed themselves briefly at previous times are usually intensified during the change of life.

It is for this reason, perhaps, that the use of glandular extracts, known as estrogens, do not do much to relieve the symptoms which occur during the change of life in all instances. It has been noted, too, that a patient who seems to be getting along all right when the estrogens are employed often will have a return of the symptoms when something upsets her. Thus, a quarrel with her husband, some worry or infection may bring on the symptoms despite the fact that estrogen is being given.

Forms of Treatment

Women who have trouble during this time need several forms of treatment. Often, reassurance and mental treatment are helpful. Certain preparations may be employed to control the upset nervous system. These include ergotamin tartrate, belladonna, and phenobarbital.

The estrogens are helpful in many instances. In mild cases, however, they will not be needed. In moderately severe cases, the drugs which quiet the nervous system may be employed, and in severe cases the estrogens are used. It is suggested that the estrogens not be continued longer than a few months. The other drugs, also, should be stopped within three to six months and used only as required.

Proper Diet

Of course, there should be treatment aimed at getting rid of such symptoms as occur. For example, bromides may be used for restlessness. Proper diet may help get rid of symptoms due to stomach and bowel disturbances. Arthritic symptoms, that is, pain and aching in the joints, may be relieved by heat, the salicylates, and massage.

Thus, any woman who has difficulty during the change of life should have a careful study made by her physician so that the most effective method for getting rid of her symptoms may be employed.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. O.: What harm is there in using a product that you are oversensitive to, such as a hair dye?

Answer: The use of such product would result in the development of some type of skin rash.

It is not advisable for you to use any product to which you are hypersensitive.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The Soviet can be excused for trying to recapture its nationals loose in this country and ship them home. Siberia is so lovely in the Autumn.

I hear one of the nationals said, "and to think I lived there for 30 years and I never knew that Stalin cared."

It's a little confusing to see a representative of a "free" people casting a diplomatic lasso for one of the free men who doesn't want to go back.

If the Soviet ambassador succeeds, Rep. Thomas probably will say, "you now have one, would you like to try for 64?"

Mr. Truman describes the Red hearings as red herring; Time will tell whether he knows his fish or snagged his line.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

THE TWO MEN set their glasses down, relaxed a little. Round One was over.

The man who called himself Enoch Arden said:

"You were surprised to get my letter?"

"Frankly," said David, "I don't understand it at all."

"N-no—n-no—well, perhaps not." David said:

"I understand you knew my sister's first husband—Robert Underhay."

"Yes, I knew Robert very well." Arden was smiling, blowing clouds of smoke idly up in the air. "As well, perhaps, as anyone could know him. You never met him, did you, Hunter?"

"No."

"Oh, perhaps that's as well."

"What do you mean by that?" David asked sharply.

Arden said easily:

"My dear fellow, it makes everything much simpler—that's all. I apologize for asking you to come here, but I did think it was best to keep"—he paused—"Rosaleen out of it all. No need to give her unnecessary pain."

"Do you mind coming to the point?"

"Of course, of course. Well now, did you ever suspect—how shall we say—that there was anything—well,—fishy—about Underhay's death?"

"What on earth do you mean?"

"Well, Underhay had rather peculiar ideas, you know. It may have been chivalry—it may just possibly have been for quite a different reason—but let's say that, at a particular moment some years ago there were certain advantages to Underhay in being considered dead. He was good at managing natives—always had been. No trouble to him to get a probable story circulated with any amount of corroborative detail. All Underhay had to do was to turn up about a thousand miles away—with a new name."

"It seems a most fantastic supposition to me," said David.

"Does it? Does it really?" Arden smiled. He leaned forward, tapped David on the knee. "Suppose it's true, Hunter? Eh? Suppose it's true?"

"I should require very definite proof of it."

"Would you? Well, of course, there's one superdefinite proof. Underhay himself could turn up here—in Warmsley Vale. How'd you like that for proof?"

"It would at least be conclusive," said David dryly.

"Oh yes, conclusive—but just a little embarrassing—for Mrs. Gordon Cloade, I mean. Because then, of course, she wouldn't be Mrs. Gordon Cloade. Awkward. You must admit, just a little bit awkward?"

"My sister," said David, "remarried in perfectly good faith."

"Of course she did, my dear fellow. Of course she did. I'm not disputing that for a second. Any judge would say the same. No actual blame could attach to her."

"Judge?" said David sharply.

The other said as though apologetically:

"I was thinking of bigamy."

"Just what are you driving at?" asked David savagely.

"Now don't get excited, old boy. We just want to put our heads together and see what's best to be done—best for your sister, that's to say. Nobody wants a lot of dirty publicity. Underhay—well, Underhay was always a chivalrous kind of chap." Arden paused. "He still is . . ."

"Is?" asked David sharply.

"That's what I said."

"You say Robert Underhay is alive. Where is he now?"

Arden leaned forward—his voice became confidential.

"Do you really want to know, Hunter? Wouldn't it be better if you didn't know? Put it that, as far as you know, and as far as Rosaleen knows, Underhay died in Africa. Very good, and if Underhay is alive, he doesn't know that his wife has married again, he hasn't the least idea of it. Because of course, if he did know, he would have to come forward . . . Rosaleen, you see, has inherited a good deal of money from her second husband. But if he never was her husband—well, then, of course, she isn't entitled to any of that money. . . . Underhay is a man with a very sensitive sense of honor. He wouldn't like her inheriting money under false pretenses." He paused. "But of course it's possible that Underhay doesn't know anything about her second marriage. He's in a bad way, poor fellow—in a very bad way."

"What do you mean by in a bad way?"

Arden shook his head solemnly.

"Broken down in health. He needs medical attention — special treatments—all unfortunately rather expensive."

The last word dropped delicately as though into a category of its own. It was the word for which David Hunter had been unconsciously waiting.

He said:

"Expensive?"

"Yes—unfortunately everything costs money. Underhay, poor devil, is practically destitute." He added: "He's got practically nothing but what he stands up in. . . ."

Just for a moment David's eyes wandered round the room. He noted the pack slung on a chair. There was no suitcase to be seen.

"I wonder," said David, and his voice was not pleasant, "if Robert Underhay is quite the chivalrous gentleman you make him out to be?"

"He was once," the other assured him. "But life, you know, is inclined to make a fellow cynical." He paused and added softly: "Gordon Cloade was really an incredibly wealthy fellow. The spectacle of too much wealth arouses one's baser instincts."

David Hunter got up.

"I've got an answer for you. Go to the devil."

Unperturbed, Arden said, smiling:

"Yes, I thought you'd say that."

"You're a blackmailer, neither more nor less. I've a good mind to call your bluff."

"Publish and be damned? An admirable sentiment. But you wouldn't like it if I did 'publish.' Not that I shall. If you won't buy. I've another market."

"What do you mean?"

"The Cloades. Suppose I go to them. 'Excuse me, but would you be interested to learn that the late Robert Underhay is very much alive?' Why, man, they'll jump at it!"

David said scornfully:

"Ah, but there's such a thing as a working arrangement. So much in cash on the day it's proved that Underhay is alive, that Mrs. Gordon Cloade is still Mrs. Robert Underhay and that consequently Gordon Cloade's will, made before his marriage, is good in law. . . ."

For some few minutes David sat silent, then he asked bluntly:

"How much?"

The answer came as bluntly:

"Twenty thousand."

"Out of the question! My sister can't touch the capital, she's only got a life interest."

"Ten thousand, then. She can raise that, easily. There's jewelry, isn't there?"

David sat silent, then he said unexpectedly:

"All right."

For a moment the other man seemed at a loss. It was as though the ease of his victory surprised him.

"No checks," he said. "To be paid in notes!"

"You'll have to give us time—to get hold of the money."

"I'll give you forty-eight hours."

"Make it next Tuesday."

"All right. You'll bring the money here." He added before David could speak, "I'm not meeting you at a lonely copse—or a deserted river bank, so don't you think so. You'll bring the money here—to the Stag—at nine o'clock next Tuesday evening."

"Suspicious sort of chap, aren't you?"

"I know my way about. And I know your kind."

"As you said, then."

David went out of the room and down the stairs. His face was black with rage.

Beatrice Lippincott came out of the room marked No. 4. There was a communicating door between 4 and 5, though the fact could hardly be noted by an occupant in 5 since a wardrobe stood upright in front of it.

Miss Lippincott's cheeks were pink and her eyes bright with pleasurable excitement. She smoothed back her pompadour of hair with an agitated hand.

IT'S BEEN SAID

Feelings come and go, like light troops following the victory of the present; but principles, like troops of the line, are undisturbed and stand fast.—Richter.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

IT HAPPENED TODAY

Aug. 12, 1937, Senator Hugo Black received his appointment as a justice of the United States Supreme Court. Abbott Henderson Thayer, American painter and discoverer of camouflage, was born on this date in 1849. Julius Rosenwald, American merchant and philanthropist, was born Aug. 12, 1862, and Christy (Big Six) Mathewson, one of the greatest baseball pitchers of all time, came into the world in 1880, same date.

Ex-reporter

Ex-church singer

JOBS UPON A TIME

Harold L. Ickes, sharp-tongued ex-Secretary of the Interior and now a columnist, started his professional life as a reporter in Chicago. He gave this job up to enter law school, and by 1911 he was launched on a career of reformer and politician. Ickes originally was a Republican, but he backed the late Theodore Roosevelt's Progressive party in 1912, fought the utilities, sought municipal reforms in Chicago and taught classes in Americanism at Hull House. He became Franklin D. Roosevelt's Secretary of the Interior in 1933, resigning in 1948. He has been married twice, has three children.

Grand Opera and radio mezzo-soprano Gladys Swarthout was born in Deepwater, Mo. After high school Miss Swarthout was a student at a Chicago music conservatory and started her musical career as a church singer. Next she appeared in concerts, and became a member of the Chicago Civic Opera company in 1924-25. Gladys has been a member of the Metropolitan Opera company since 1929, has toured widely in concerts and for five successive years was voted the first female classical singer in radio by critics of the United States and Canada. In private life Miss Swarthout is Mrs. Frank M. Chapman.

YOUR FUTURE

If you don't feel so good, try sports or physical labor, or take in a movie. Be tactful in your next 12 months so that you do not arouse the hostility of elders or employers by foolish conduct. Safeguard your own health and that of your family.

MODERN MANNERS

Don't make disparaging remarks when a girl friend shows you her engagement ring, such as "It's small, isn't it?" or something similar. Admire it unreservedly, as you would like to have her admire yours if you were in her shoes.

HOW'D YOU MAKE OUT?

1. Should read, "If I were she, I wouldn't cut my hair."
2. Kine.
3. No.
4. Table salt—sodium and chlorine.
5. To measure the human pulse.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—The loneliness of the people in this city is by this time virtually a legend. The dusty and empty hall bedrooms, the thousands of forlorn souls drifting friendlessly through the crowds—these are familiar arias in the jangled opera of the big town. It no longer is novel or eye-arresting to write that this can be the loneliest place in the world. It is an accepted fact. Indeed, there probably are more lonely ones here per square foot than anywhere else on God's green earth. In the last 10 years, however, the situation has been eased a trifle. Madame Cassandra has been at work.

Madame Cassandra is a stocky, bright, blonde woman of middle age who no longer goes under the name Madame Cassandra. That was a fine label a decade ago when she was reading horoscopes along the Riviera, but back in 1938 or so she abandoned the seeress business in favor of something called Friendship Center, Inc.

Friendship Center is a serious if somewhat sentimental venture dedicated to the introduction of lonely souls to one another.

Thus, Madame Cassandra now is Clara Lane—a name known to millions of bus and subway riders who for years have seen her placards urging them to come and see her if they want to begin feeling "the excitement that comes with meeting the right person through conventional introductions."

Yesterday I buttonholed Miss Lane in her basement suite of offices below the Hotel Wentworth in the mid-Forties, and with the help of her office manager, an enigmatic and amiable Turk who insists he be known only as Mr. Chris, did some considerable research into her career.

* * * *

MISS LANE, WHO SEEMS TO APPROACH AN INTERVIEW warily if pleasantly and is constantly making statements and then saying she doesn't think maybe she'd better SAY that, got a word or two in edgewise but Mr. Chris was in general command most of the way.

Mr. Chris' real business, he says, is an enterprise called Contacts, Inc., which has to do in some way with business propositions (I'm sorry, but that's about as definite as I can be), but he finds time to help steer Friendship Center over the rough spots. "He just likes to talk to the girls," Miss Lane commented, bluntly.

Clara Lane 10 years ago was turning out horoscopes for a whisky company and, on the side, was reading more detailed 'scopes for citizens.

Miss Lane is a Davenport, Iowa, girl who started her career at a gypsy tearoom operator in Chicago and later sold out the tearooms and went to the south of France as the aforementioned Madame Cassandra. Sitting in her West 42nd street penthouse analyzing the astrological aspects of various New Yorkers' futures at so much an aspect, Miss Lane noted how wistful and forlorn many of them seemed. They all were lonely.

* * * *

THUS BEGAN FRIENDSHIP CENTER to get these lonely souls together. Marriage was not the immediate objective, as in the case of the famous Jewish marriage brokers or shatchins—but sex has a way of rearing its picturesque head.

Figures from Friendship Center indicate that of the 35,000 men and women who have registered in the 10 years of the "club's" existence, 67 per cent ended up getting married.

Friendship Center is a business venture and Miss Lane obviously is in it mainly to make an honest buck, but when it succeeds in ending the empty hall-bedroom life for 20,000 or so citizens, you must take off your hat to it, if you wear one.

There is nothing hit-or-miss about Friendship Center, which, incidentally, now has branches in Miami, Newark and Atlantic City.

Applicants are screened thoroughly and given long questionnaires to fill out. The questions involve everything but the actual placement of birthmarks; they even take up the business of favorite columnists.

A Westbrook Pegler fan, thus, would be introduced to another Westbrook Pegler fan; it would be bad business, on the other hand, to introduce a Mel Heimer fan to an Elsa Maxwell fan.

Religion is another big factor. Miss Lane makes sure that the two persons being spiritually mated are of the same faith. And a Catholic girl, if divorced, never is introduced to a Catholic man.

"I don't believe in divorce, being Catholic myself," Miss Lane told me, "but maybe you'd better not say anything about it. It wouldn't be fair to divorcees."

Play Bridge With

BARCLAY

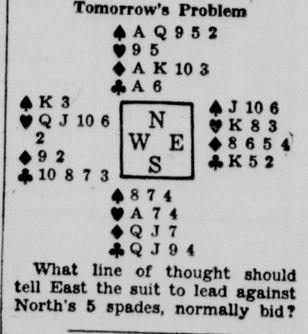

A bit of thought will show you sometimes that one defender is almost surely going to ruff a lead just made by his partner. When that is apparent, there is no sense to putting in a top honor from your own side to have it wasted by trumping. Your job then is merely to be sure that the card led will not win the trick for the other fellows. That means, you should stick in a card only high enough to be sure that the leader does not get the trick, and should save the big honor for use later on, when it will do some good.

Play began the same at two tables of a duplicate where the spade game contract was reached. West led the heart 7, low being played from dummy and the K felling the Q. East returned the diamond 4 to the A and then West sent back the diamond 2. In each case the 4 had been read by West as surely either a singleton or the bottom of four, since no lower diamonds were out of sight, and the singleton reading was the more logical by far because otherwise East could not have had a clear-cut motive for the lead.

At one of the two tables, South made no such reading. He put in the dummy's K on the trick and East ruffed it off with the spade 2. Later that South had to take a licking, as there was no way for dummy's trumps to ruff out all of his losers.

The other South, reading the situation clearly, knew East would not have made a false-card diamond 4 lead if holding the Q, into the dummy's K-J. Counting up his losers to be taken care of, South saw he could afford to sacrifice the diamond J. in case East had led low from the 10-4 to fool him. So doing, he preserved the dummy's diamond K. Having there also the good heart A and J, plus trumps for ruffing, he made the contract easily after East ruffed the third diamond and returned the heart 10.

Tomorrow's Problem

What line of thought should tell East the suit to lead against North's 5 spades, normally bid?

NEW PRIME MINISTER

A LAWYER of long private practice, pressed into political service during the war, is to be Canada's new prime minister. The public life of Louis Stephen St. Laurent, new leader of the National Liberal party, began in 1941.

He entered politics then only at the urgent request of the now retiring prime minister, William Lyon Mackenzie King, who wanted his help in the trying war period. In that short time he achieved such standing in his party that almost from the moment Mr. King announced his intention to retire there was small doubt among the politically wise of Canada as to who would be the successor.

Few will envy him the task he takes up. Being a French Canadian, he is well able to understand and perhaps to cope with the growing problem of touchy relations between Canadians of French and English tongue. His country, like its southern neighbor, faces uncertain economic prospects. His government has undertaken to accept as a new province the colony of Newfoundland, which 15 years ago had to give up dominion status because of financial troubles.

A busy year is ahead for the new prime minister of Canada, and at the end of it his party must face a major test of its strength in general elections. It would not be an attractive outlook for a man of faint heart.

ITALY IN AFRICA

"NOT ON any account." So the inhabitants of Libya say when asked if they would be willing to have another experience of Italian rule. A four-power commission of the United States, Great Britain, France and Russia has just rendered reports, each to its own government, agreeing on that. Some would like independence, some a trusteeship either of Great Britain or of the United States.

Italy had but few colonies, and those were regions of meager possibilities. Add to that Italy's own poverty, and it is easy to see why the Italian areas in North Africa have remained largely undeveloped. And the Italians, despite their great talents, have had so much difficulty in getting a tolerable government of their own that it is easy to understand why their colonial experiment has on the whole failed.

For the next few years it is probable that Italy will have plenty of house-cleaning to do at home, and will not miss her former colonies.

As for the female who won that tobacco-spittin' bout in West Virginia—maybe there ought to be a law.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Did you ever watch an electrician do a job by slow motion? I often wonder whether they carry stop-watches to guide them to do the least possible work during the longest possible time at the highest possible wages? If one lets one of these highwaymen into his house, he mortgages his future. That is one of the main reasons why there is a housing shortage in this country. The contractor, who is responsible to the payer, stands about shaking his head in disgust. He has no rights in the matter; the union determines what is an efficient operation. But the union does not pay the bill.

Have you recently bought an automobile? Was it slapped together so that you had plentiful repairs during the first five hundred miles? True, you are guaranteed and the company sends you a check to cover repairs. But what about your time? What about being stuck on the road, miles from nowhere, with a car that is absolutely new but has a broken carburetor or an air purifier with the top loose or one of a thousand other defects? Management can quarrel with the unions but it cannot establish old-time efficient operations. It has to be gentle with the incompetent, the inconsiderate, the inefficient.

Did you ever complain to the telephone operators, particularly the long-distance gals who used to be the pride of the United States, because they cut you off? Where is the renowned efficiency of this best of all systems? They have had too many strikes.

The other day I called up a store to ask about a water pump. A girl went into a rigamarole as to whether I wanted to buy the pump, or order from the catalogue. I said, "I wanted a pump."

"I know that," she replied, "but do you want it on the floor or from the catalogue."

"Look, miss," I said, "I want a pump. Get me one from the catalogue, from the floor, from the warehouse, from Chicago, Philadelphia, or from General Wood himself, but get me a man who sells a pump."

"Don't shout at me," she said angrily.

"A pump! A kingdom for a pump," I wept.

So she told me to call another number.

Finally, I got a man and, in a two-minute conversation over the telephone, I bought the pump, which was in my possession as soon as we got up to the store.

The first girl might have lost that sale, but what can management do? If they criticize her, she will accuse management of shouting at her even if they whisper that she is losing customers.

If all management went on strike when it cannot operate efficiently and if the public stopped buying when it finds itself abused, this nonsense of inefficiency and featherbedding and just plain blackmailing would soon cease. The time has come to strike back.

Looks like Tito didn't study Communism quite long enough. He didn't learn to be a good boy.

The year 1948 probably will be remembered as the time of new parties and the New Look. Which will last longer?

Home prices are reported higher in June than ever before. We wouldn't have thought it possible.

Britain's Labor government has been having labor troubles.

DIET AND HEALTH

Women at the Change of Life

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IT has long been a puzzle why some women should suffer so severely during the change of life while others have practically no trouble at all. Admittedly, the glandular changes occurring at this time demand a readjustment of the entire body, but since the changes themselves are the same for all women, modern science believes that the variation in their effects is due to differences in the type of nervous system and its ability to withstand stress and strain.

A woman who is highly sensitive and easily upset may have symptoms early during the change of life, often before the periods stop. In fact, she may get similar symptoms during each monthly period.

Placid Woman

On the other hand, the stable, placid woman may go through the change of life without hardly any symptoms at all.

It is also interesting to note that women who tend to be gloomy and depressed at the time of the regular monthly periods will have similar symptoms at the time of the change of life. Those who are jittery or irritable and subject to headache or stomach upsets will usually find these symptoms more noticeable at the time of the change. In short, basic weaknesses which have revealed themselves briefly at previous times are usually intensified during the change of life.

It is for this reason, perhaps, that the use of glandular extracts, known as estrogens, do not do much to relieve the symptoms which occur during the change of life in all instances. It has been noted, too, that a patient who seems to be getting along all right when the estrogens are employed often will have a return of the symptoms when something upsets her. Thus, a quarrel with her husband, some worry or infection may bring on the symptoms despite the fact that estrogen is being given.

Forms of Treatment

Women who have trouble during this time need several forms of treatment. Often, reassurance and mental treatment are helpful. Certain preparations may be employed to control the upset nervous system. These include ergotamin tartrate, belladonna, and phenobarbital.

The estrogens are helpful in many instances. In mild cases, however, they will not be needed. In moderately severe cases, the drugs which quiet the nervous system may be employed, and in severe cases the estrogens are used. It is suggested that the estrogens not be continued longer than a few months. The other drugs, also, should be stopped within three to six months and used only as required.

Proper Diet

Of course, there should be treatment aimed at getting rid of such symptoms as occur. For example, bromides may be used for restlessness. Proper diet may help get rid of symptoms due to stomach and bowel disturbances. Arthritic symptoms, that is, pain and aching in the joints, may be relieved by heat, the salicylates, and massage.

Thus, any woman who has difficulty during the change of life should have a careful study made by her physician so that the most effective method for getting rid of her symptoms may be employed.

Answer: The use of such product would result in the development of some type of skin rash.

It is not advisable for you to use any product to which you are hypersensitive.

"N-no—n-no—well, perhaps not."

"Yes, I knew Robert very well." Arden was smiling, blowing clouds of smoke idly up in the air. "As well, perhaps, as anyone could know him. You never met him, did you, Hunter?"

"No."

"Oh, perhaps that's as well."

"What do you mean by that?" David asked sharply.

Arden said easily:

"My dear fellow, it makes everything much simpler—that's all. I apologize for asking you to come here, but I did think it was best to keep"—he paused—"Rosaleen out of it all. No need to give her unnecessary pain."

"I should require very definite proof of it."

"Would you? Well, of course, there's one superdefinite proof. Underhay himself could turn up here—in Warmsley Vale. How'd you like that for proof?"

"It would at least be conclusive," said David dryly.

"Oh yes, conclusive—but just a little embarrassing—for Mrs. Gordon Cloade, I mean. Because then, of course, she wouldn't be Mrs. Gordon Cloade. Awkward. You must admit, just a little bit awkward?"

"My sister," said David, "remarried in perfectly good faith."

"Of course she did, my dear fellow. Of course she did. I'm not disputing that for a second. Any judge would say the same. No actual blame could attach to her."

"Judge?" said David sharply.

The other said as though apologetically:

"I was thinking of bigamy."

"Just what are you driving at?" asked David savagely.

"Now don't get excited, old boy. We just want to put our heads together and see what's best to be done—best for your sister, that's to say. Nobody wants a lot of dirty publicity. Underhay—well, Underhay was always a chivalrous kind of chap." Arden paused. "He still is . . ."

"Is?" asked David sharply.

"That's what I said."

"You say Robert Underhay is alive. Where is he now?"

Arden leaned forward—his voice became confidential.

"Do you really want to know, Hunter? Wouldn't it be better if you didn't know? Put it that, as far as you know, and as far as Rosaleen knows, Underhay died in Africa. Very good, and if Underhay is alive, he doesn't know that his wife has married again, he hasn't the least idea of it. Because of course, if he did know, he would have to come forward . . . Rosaleen, you see, has inherited a good deal of money from her second husband. But if he never was her husband—well, then, of course, she isn't entitled to any of that money. . . . Underhay is a man with a very sensitive sense of honor. He wouldn't like her inheriting money under false pretenses." He paused. "But of course it's possible that Underhay doesn't know anything about her second marriage. He's in a bad way, poor fellow—in a very bad way."

"What do you mean by in a bad way?"

Arden shook his head solemnly.

"Broken down in health. He needs medical attention — special treatments—all unfortunately rather expensive."

The last word dropped delicately as though into a category of its own. It was the word for which David Hunter had been unconsciously waiting.

He said:

"Expensive?"

"Yes—unfortunately everything costs money. Underhay, poor devil, is practically destitute." He added: "He's got practically nothing but what he stands up in. . . ."

Just for a moment David's eyes wandered round the room. He noted the pack slung on a chair. There was no suitcase to be seen.

"I wonder," said David, and his voice was not pleasant, "if Robert Underhay is quite the chivalrous gentleman you make him out to be?"

"He was once," the other assured him. "But life, you know, is inclined to make a fellow cynical." He paused and added softly: "Gordon Cloade was really an incredibly wealthy fellow. The spectacle of too much wealth arouses one's baser instincts."

David Hunter got up.

"I've got an answer for you. Go to the devil."

Unperturbed, Arden said, smiling:

"Yes, I thought you'd say that."

"You're a blackmailer, neither more nor less. I've a good mind to call your bluff."

"Publish and be damned? An admirable sentiment. But you wouldn't like it if I did 'publish.' Not that I shall. If you won't buy. I've another market."

"What do you mean?"

"The Cloades. Suppose I go to them. 'Excuse me, but would you be interested to learn that the late Robert Underhay is very much alive?' Why, man, they'll jump at it!"

David said scornfully:

"Ah, but there's such a thing as a working arrangement. So much in cash on the day it's proved that Underhay is alive, that Mrs. Gordon Cloade is still Mrs. Robert Underhay and that consequently Gordon Cloade's will, made before his marriage, is good in law. . . ."

For some few minutes David sat silent, then he asked bluntly:

"How much?"

The answer came as bluntly:

"Twenty thousand."

"Ten thousand, then. She can raise that, easily. There's jewelry, isn't there?"

David sat silent, then he said unexpectedly:

"All right."

For a moment the other man seemed at a loss. It was as though the ease of his victory surprised him.

"No checks," he said. "To be paid in notes!"

"You'll have to give us time—to get hold of the money."

"I'll give you forty-eight hours."

"Make it next Tuesday."

"All right. You'll bring the money here." He added before David could speak, "I'm not meeting you at a lonely copse—or a deserted river bank, so don't you think so. You'll bring the money here—to the Stag—at nine o'clock next Tuesday evening."

"Suspicious sort of chap, aren't you?"

"I know my way about. And I know your kind."

"As you said, then."

David went out of the room and down the stairs. His face was black with rage.

Beatrice Lippincott came out of the room marked No. 4. There was a communicating door between 4 and 5, though the fact could hardly be noted by an occupant in 5 since a wardrobe stood upright in front of it.

Miss Lippincott's cheeks were pink and her eyes bright with pleasurable excitement. She smoothed back her pompadour of hair with an agitated hand.

THE ANSWER, QUICK!

1. What is wrong with this sentence—"If I were her, I wouldn't cut my hair?"
2. What is a poetic name for cattle?
3. Are the bones of the hands and feet useful in blood manufacture?
4. What common food, eaten almost every day, contains two deadly poisons?
5. For what was the pendulum first used?

IT'S BEEN SAID

Feelings come and go, like light troops following the victory of the present; but principles, like troops of the line, are undisturbed and stand fast.—Richter.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

IT HAPPENED TODAY

Aug. 12, 1937, Senator Hugo Black received his appointment as a justice of the United States Supreme Court. Abbott Henderson Thayer, American painter and discoverer of camouflage, was born on this date in 1849. Julius Rosenwald, American merchant and philanthropist, was born Aug. 12, 1862, and Christy (Big Six) Mathewson, one of the greatest baseball pitchers of all time, came into the world in 1880, same date.

Ex-reporter Ex-church singer

JOBS UPON A TIME

Harold L. Ickes, sharp-tongued ex-Secretary of the Interior and now a columnist, started his professional life as a reporter in Chicago. He gave this job up to enter law school, and by 1911 he was launched on a career of reformer and politician. Ickes originally was a Republican, but he backed the late Theodore Roosevelt's Progressive party in 1912, fought the utilities, sought municipal reforms in Chicago and taught classes in Americanism at Hull House. He became Franklin D. Roosevelt's Secretary of the Interior in 1933, resigning in 1948. He has been married twice, has three children.

Grand Opera and radio mezzo-soprano Gladys Swarthout was born in Deepwater, Mo. After high school Miss Swarthout was a student at a Chicago music conservatory and started her musical career as a church singer. Next she appeared in concerts, and became a member of the Chicago Civic Opera company in 1924-25. Gladys has been a member of the Metropolitan Opera company since 1929, has toured widely in concerts and for five successive years was voted the first female classical singer in radio by critics of the United States and Canada. In private life Miss Swarthout is Mrs. Frank M. Chapman.

YOUR FUTURE

If you don't feel so good, try sports or physical labor, or take in a movie. Be tactful in your next 12 months so that you do not arouse the hostility of elders or employers by foolish conduct. Safeguard your own health and that of your family.

MODERN MANNERS

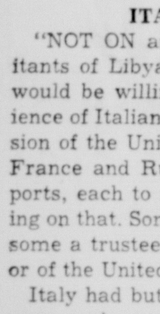

Don't make disparaging remarks when a girl friend shows you her engagement ring, such as "It's small, isn't it?" or something similar. Admire it unreservedly, as you would like to have her admire yours if you were in her shoes.

HOW'D YOU MAKE OUT?

1. Should read, "If I were she, I wouldn't cut my hair."
2. Kine.
3. No.
4. Table salt—sodium and chlorine.
5. To measure the human pulse

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—The loneliness of the people in this city is by this time virtually a legend. The dusty and empty hall bedrooms, the thousands of forlorn souls drifting friendlessly through the crowds—these are familiar arias in the jangled opera of the big town. It no longer is novel or eye-arresting to write that this can be the loneliest place in the world. It is an accepted fact. Indeed, there probably are more lonely ones here per square foot than anywhere else on God's green earth. In the last 10 years, however, the situation has been eased a trifle. Madame Cassandra has been at work.

Madame Cassandra is a stocky, bright, blonde woman of middle age who no longer goes under the name Madame Cassandra. That was a fine label a decade ago when she was reading horoscopes along the Riviera, but back in 1938 or so she abandoned the seeress business in favor of something called Friendship Center, Inc.

Thus, Madame Cassandra now is Clara Lane—a name known to millions of bus and subway riders who for years have seen her placards urging them to come and see her if they want to begin feeling "the excitement that comes with meeting the right person through conventional introductions."

Yesterday I buttonholed Miss Lane in her basement suite of offices below the Hotel Wentworth in the mid-Forties, and with the help of her office manager, an enigmatic and amiable Turk who insists he be known only as Mr. Chris, did some considerable research into her career.

* * * *

MISS LANE, WHO SEEMS TO APPROACH AN INTERVIEW warily if pleasantly and is constantly making statements and then saying she doesn't think maybe she'd better SAY that, got a word or two in edgewise but Mr. Chris was in general command most of the way.

Mr. Chris' real business, he says, is an enterprise called Contacts, Inc., which has to do in some way with business propositions (I'm sorry, but that's about as definite as I can be), but he finds time to help steer Friendship Center over the rough spots. "He just likes to talk to the girls," Miss Lane commented, bluntly.

Clara Lane 10 years ago was turning out horoscopes for a whisky company and, on the side, was reading more detailed 'scopes for citizens.

Miss Lane is a Davenport, Iowa, girl who started her career at a gypsy tearoom operator in Chicago and later sold out the tearooms and went to the south of France as the aforementioned Madame Cassandra. Sitting in her West 42nd street penthouse analyzing the astrological aspects of various New Yorkers' futures at so much an aspect, Miss Lane noted how wistful and forlorn many of them seemed. They all were lonely.

* * * *

THUS BEGAN FRIENDSHIP CENTER to get these lonely souls together. Marriage was not the immediate objective, as in the case of the famous Jewish marriage brokers or shatchins—but sex has a way of rearing its picturesque head.

Figures from Friendship Center indicate that of the 35,000 men and women who have registered in the 10 years of the "club's" existence, 67 per cent ended up getting married.

Friendship Center is a business venture and Miss Lane obviously is in it mainly to make an honest buck, but when it succeeds in ending the empty hall-bedroom life for 20,000 or so citizens, you must take off your hat to it, if you wear one.

There is nothing hit-or-miss about Friendship Center, which, incidentally, now has branches in Miami, Newark and Atlantic City.

Applicants are screened thoroughly and given long questionnaires to fill out. The questions involve everything but the actual placement of birthmarks; they even take up the business of favorite columnists.

A Westbrook Pegler fan, thus, would be introduced to another Westbrook Pegler fan; it would be bad business, on the other hand, to introduce a Mel Heimer fan to an Elsa Maxwell fan.

Religion is another big factor. Miss Lane makes sure that the two persons being spiritually mated are of the same faith. And a Catholic girl, if divorced, never is introduced to a Catholic man.

"I don't believe in divorce, being Catholic myself," Miss Lane told me, "but maybe you'd better not say anything about it. It wouldn't be fair to divorcees."

Play Bridge With
BARCLAY

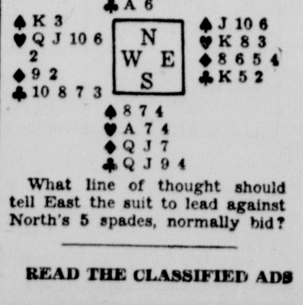

A bit of thought will show you sometimes that one defender is almost surely going to ruff a lead just made by his partner. When that is apparent, there is no sense to putting in a top honor from your own side to have it wasted by trumping. Your job then is merely to be sure that the card led will not win the trick for the other fellows. That means, you should stick in a card only high enough to be sure that the leader does not get the trick, and should save the big honor for use later on, when it will do some good.

Play began the same at two tables of a duplicate where the spade game contract was reached. West led the heart 7, low being played from dummy and the K felling the Q. East returned the diamond 4 to the A and then West sent back the diamond 2. In each case the 4 had been read by West as surely either a singleton or the bottom of four, since no lower diamonds were out of sight, and the singleton reading was the more logical by far because otherwise East could not have had a clear-cut motive for the lead.

At one of the two tables, South made no such reading. He put in the dummy's K on the trick and East ruffed it off with the spade 2. Later that South had to take a licking, as there was no way for dummy's trumps to ruff out all of his losers.

The other South, reading the situation clearly, knew East would not have made a false-card diamond 4 lead if holding the Q, into the dummy's K-J. Counting up his losers to be taken care of, South saw he could afford to sacrifice the diamond J in case East had led low from the 10-4 to fool him. So doing, he preserved the dummy's diamond K. Having there also the good heart A and J, plus trumps for ruffing, he made the contract easily after East ruffed the third diamond and returned the heart 10.

Tomorrow's Problem

What line of thought should tell East the suit to lead against North's 5 spades, normally bid?

Mrs. David L. Yates Honored At Bridge Luncheon Wednesday

The Misses Crites, Thornton Win Prizes

Mrs. D. Adrian Yates entertained Wednesday to compliment Mrs. David Lutz Yates who recently became the bride of her son.

Places were marked by miniature silver nut cups at three large tables decorated in Summer flowers in the Pickaway Arms for 38 of the younger social crowd of Circleville.

Following the one o'clock luncheon the group adjourned to the Yates home on West Mound street for an afternoon of contract bridge at nine card tables.

When tallies were computed prizes were awarded Miss Regina Thornton of East Main street and Miss Mary Virginia Crites of West Franklin street. The hostess presented the guest of honor with a gift.

Mrs. Edward Amey Entertains Circle 5 Of First Church

Pickaway Country Club house was the scene of a meeting of Circle 5, Women's Society of Christian Service of First Methodist church Wednesday evening.

Devotionals were under direction of Mrs. Edgar Carmean. The program was dispensed with in order that a demonstration featuring plastic articles might be given.

Mrs. Edward Amey was hostess for the meeting and served a lunch later in the evening. Guests at the session were Mrs. Frank Wantz, Mrs. Talmer Wise, Miss Alice Wilson, Mrs. Fred Colville, Mrs. Boyd Stout, Mrs. Pauline Goodchild, Miss Letha Beavers, Mrs. William Cook, Mrs. Roger Lozier and Mrs. Dan Pfoutz.

Mrs. Irvin Kinsey invited the group to meet with her in September in her home, Guilford road.

13th Birthday Marked By Party

Mr. and Mrs. Berman Wertman entertained to celebrate the 13th birthday of their daughter, Adelaide, in their home on East Franklin street. For the occasion the lawn was decorated. Games and music furnished entertainment.

Refreshments were served from the diningroom table. Pink and white crepe paper streamers were used for decorations. Mrs. Lee Cook baked and presented a large decorated cake to the guest of honor.

Among the guests were Carol and Nancy Goodchild, Marlene Manceni, Carolyn Wolford, Linda Jo Storts, Marilyn Radcliff, Phyllis and Margaret Dresbach, Connie Lou Wertman, Gordon Blake, Walter Heine, Ronald Eldridge, Tom Graef, Gene Clifton, Roy Huffer and David Steele.

Heat marks may be removed from a coffee table by dampening a cloth with spirits of camphor or essence of peppermint. Daub it on the spot, and let it dry thoroughly, then polish by rubbing hard.

Needy Of Europe To Benefit By Ladies Society

Plans were made by members of the Ladies Society of Trinity Lutheran church to prepare a box of clothing to be sent in the near future to the needy in Europe.

Mrs. James S. Carpenter, president, opened the meeting Wednesday evening with a song service in the parish house. Devotionals were in charge of the junior chaplain, Mrs. Luther Walters. Mrs. Charles Walters gave the missionary topic, "Christian Citizenship and Recreation."

The Rev. G. L. Troutman, pastor of the church, discussed the missionary topic. Meeting was brought to a close by a hymn and repeating the Lord's prayer.

During the program two solos were offered by Nancy Sensenbrenner. She was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Robert Garrett. Instrumental musical selections were presented by Edward Wolfe and his sister, Anne Wolfe.

Lunch was served by the August hospitality committee composed of Mrs. Frank Turner, Mrs. George Gerhardt, Mrs. Chester Wolf, Mrs. Charles Beck, Miss Cora Henn, Mrs. Scott Radcliff and Marvin Rhoads.

Plans were made by members of the Ladies Society of Trinity Lutheran church to prepare a box of clothing to be sent in the near future to the needy in Europe.

Mrs. James S. Carpenter, president, opened the meeting Wednesday evening with a song service in the parish house. Devotionals were in charge of the junior chaplain. Mrs. Luther Walters. Mrs. Charles Walters gave the missionary topic, "Christian Citizenship and Recreation."

The Rev. G. L. Troutman, pastor of the church, discussed the missionary topic. Meeting was brought to a close by a hymn and repeating the Lord's prayer.

During the program two solos were offered by Nancy Sensenbrenner. She was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Robert Garrett. Instrumental musical selections were presented by Edward Wolfe and his sister, Anne Wolfe.

Lunch was served by the August hospitality committee composed of Mrs. Frank Turner, Mrs. George Gerhardt, Mrs. Chester Wolf, Mrs. Charles Beck, Miss Cora Henn, Mrs. Scott Radcliff and Marvin Rhoads.

Former Resident To Be Married

Of interest to Circleville residents is the announcement of the approaching marriage of Miss Virginia Kitzmiller, who formerly made a home here and attended the local high school.

She is a daughter of Mrs. Virginia Jones Kitzmiller, a granddaughter of the late Dr. Howard Jones of North Court street, and Mrs. Jones now of Cincinnati.

Miss Kitzmiller will become the bride of Paul Martin Newath at Haverford, Pa., Aug. 28. Following the ceremony, the new couple plans to make a home in New York City.

Open House Scheduled

Mr. and Mrs. Edward McClarren of Logan street will observe their golden wedding anniversary Sunday.

To mark the occasion, they will be hosts for an open house between the hours of 2 to 6 p. m.

Youths Sponsor Square Dance

The square dance sponsored by 4-H Clubs of Saltcreek Township Wednesday evening in Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum proved to be a "great success," sponsors said Thursday.

"Doc" Roll called the dances which represent typical American folk dances. His orchestra supplied popular tunes for both round and a square dancing.

The event was arranged to benefit the 4-H Club Foundation Fund to which each club member in Pickaway County has been asked to contribute. All proceeds were handed over to the 4-H Club project.

Responsible for the affair were members of Saltcreek Livestock Club, Victory Stitchers and Junior and Senior Stitch and Chatter Clubs.

New Blood, Crossbreeds Tested For Better Beef

A major question among American beef producers is whether they can improve cattle through introduction of foreign blood.

Brahman and Angus cattle have been crossed in various combinations and the crosses have proved especially good for grazing in the hot humid country of the Gulf Coast area. They make gains where regular breeds stand still, or go down hill. The Brahman has made the offspring more resistant to heat, disease, and insects, and possessed with unusual ability to make beef from grass.

Brahmans are now being studied in the Midwest and in the northern states to see how they do under far different conditions. Brahmans crossed with Angus cattle withstood Northern Winters quite well, were heavier and more resistant to disease than native calves.

* * *

SOME SOUTHERN ranchers also have been crossing Brahmans and Angus, calling them Brangus, and Brahmans with Herefords, calling them Brafords. Brahmans have been crossed with Shorthorns to develop a new breed, the Santa Gertrudis. Another Brahman combination, the Beefmaster, is a cross slightly less than one-half Brahman, with the rest about equally divided between Hereford and Shorthorn.

There is no answer yet as to how well the carcass from a Brahman cross will be accepted at the market. The hump, the loose skin, and pinched rump may not appeal to the discerning eye of the packer buyer.

One positive statement comes from Prof. R. W. Snyder, head of the meats laboratory at the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College.

After killing thousands of Brahman crosses, he declares their quality is just as good as anything else, with a 3 to 4 percent edge on dressing percentage.

A French breed, the Charollais, is beginning to show up in the South and a little in the North. They are said to be highly fertile, adaptable, easy to fatten at any age, and produce well-proportioned carcasses.

From South Africa came the Africander, a more sluggish creature than the Brahman. One important difference found between the Africander and the Brahman, when crossed with Angus, is that the Africander crossbreeds gives less milk than the Brahman crossbreed cows.

* * *

TURNING AWAY from the foreign breeds, there have been many interesting crossbreeding tests. The Montana agricultural experiment station, in cooperation with the USDA has impressive results from the nine years of experiments with three-breed crossing, Angus, Hereford, and Shorthorn. The crossbreds weighed 70 to 100 pounds more at a weaning age, has a better carcass grade, a higher dressing and produced beef at a greater profit per pound. The hybrid oomph, gained thru crossing, was apparent throughout the entire group.

At the Ohio agricultural experiment station crossbred Angus-Herefords have been compared with Herefords. In practically all cases, both when fed out as baby beeves and as fat cattle, the crossbreds did better than the purebreds.

In Canada, the University of Saskatchewan has done some work to indicate that crossbred animals have definite advantages over purebreds in rate of gain and carcass quality.

6 Men Facing Gambling Probe

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12—Cleveland safety department officials were expected to press charges today against six men arrested in further police raids yesterday through Cleveland's policy racket belt.

Three men were arrested for posession of policy slips, two for possession of policy books and the sixth for allegedly permitting gambling in the rear room of a restaurant. The arrests were made by plain-clothes patrolmen.

In Molotov, the man who resembles President "Teddy" Roosevelt, the Russians have an expert in delaying tactics.

The chubby, self- proclaimed "champion of the masses" and his countrymen are out to wreck the Marshall Plan which is aimed at rehabilitating millions of improverished Western Europeans.

Molotov has unlimited patience in sparring with the Western ambassadors and awaiting the Soviet goal. As a strict party man and old Bolshevik he must take the line that the West will suffer an economic collapse under the Marshall aid burden and other strains which the Russians can impose.

* * *

THE GERMAN Ruhr is considered a vital cog if the Marshall Plan is to succeed. Russia wants a controlling voice in that industrial area and she is absolutely firm against the Western German government plan to aid in organizing the Ruhr.

Molotov is famous for his arguments on procedural questions. The Soviet foreign minister can argue for hours on a single question of the procedure—whether he wants a certain item put on an agenda for discussion, and just what place that item will have on the list.

When others argue with him, Molotov sits unperturbed, chain-smokes, and fiddles with his pince-nez glasses. But these disarming gestures are deceptive as Western diplomats have learned. One mistake on their part and he pounces.

Former U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, who spent months talking and battling with Molotov, has great respect for the Russian's abilities.

But Byrnes, who found Molotov devious compared to the directness of Stalin, also credits the Soviet foreign minister with what he terms "a major diplomatic blunder." Byrnes tells about it in his recent book, "Speaking Frankly."

This occurred during the brief "honeymoon" of the Stalin-Hitler friendship agreement in 1939 paving the way to the Russian-German partition of Poland.

Molotov had gone to Berlin to see Hitler that November and Hitler was in an expansive mood. Certain of victory, Hitler outlined plans for Russia and Germany to carve up the world.

* * *

THIS GRANDIOSE scheme was too much at the moment for the precise, legal mind of Molotov who wanted to know about immediate Russian spheres in the Balkans.

Molotov demanded an immediate answer on German recognition of Soviet spheres of influence in Finland, Bulgaria, Romania, and the Dardanelles.

Hitler was so infuriated that Byrnes is convinced the fuehrer at that moment made up his mind he would attack Russia. At least Soviet-German relations, despite Russian eagerness to mend them, cooled at that point.

But Byrnes, who found Molotov devious compared to the directness of Stalin, also credits the Soviet foreign minister with what he terms "a major diplomatic blunder." Byrnes tells about it in his recent book, "Speaking Frankly."

This occurred during the brief "honeymoon" of the Stalin-Hitler friendship agreement in 1939 paving the way to the Russian-German partition of Poland.

Molotov had gone to Berlin to see Hitler that November and Hitler was in an expansive mood. Certain of victory, Hitler outlined plans for Russia and Germany to carve up the world.

* * *

THIS GRANDIOSE scheme was too much at the moment for the precise, legal mind of Molotov who wanted to know about immediate Russian spheres in the Balkans.

Molotov demanded an immediate answer on German recognition of Soviet spheres of influence in Finland, Bulgaria, Romania, and the Dardanelles.

Hitler was so infuriated that Byrnes is convinced the fuehrer at that moment made up his mind he would attack Russia. At least Soviet-German relations, despite Russian eagerness to mend them, cooled at that point.

Vishinsky Back In Corner With Tito's Top Aides

BELGRADE, Aug. 12—Andrei Y. Vishinsky, usually well-poised Russian deputy foreign minister, was the target of chuckles among Belgrade stripe-pants diplomats today.

Two Soviet - denounced henchmen of Marshal Tito backed Vishinsky into a corner at a Yugoslav government reception last night much to the apparent embarrassment of the white-haired Russian.

Like it or not, Vishinsky had to engage in a pleasant conversation with the pair whom the Moscow-run Cominform has denounced as "Trotskyists," traitors, and even worse terms from the Communist lexicon.

Guests arriving at the Yugoslav reception were amazed to see Vice-Premier Edvard Kardelj and Interior Minister Col. Gen. Alexander Rankovitch talking with Vishinsky in a conspicuous corner of the grand hall of the Officers Club.

Russian sources indicated that the fiery-tongued Vishinsky was as much surprised as anyone else to find himself confronted by these men who along with Tito have been boldly defying the Soviet Union and its still subservient satellite states.

* * *

KARDELJ and Rankovitch returned from Tito's mountain stronghold at Bled for the apparent purpose of meeting Vishinsky on their home grounds and on their own terms.

Western diplomats interpreted this move as a demonstration of bravado intended to make clear that Tito still is willing to return to the Soviet fold but only on the condition that he remain master in his own house.

Vishinsky was attired in a rumpled grey suit instead of the immaculate diplomatic uniform he always wears to such receptions in Moscow and wore a grim expression most of the time.

Vishinsky twice forced a smile and once shook his finger at Kardelj as if indicating that the subject was taboo.

When Romania's woman foreign minister, Ana Pauker, arrived she went direct to Vishinsky to shake hands without noticing who was talking with him. The gracious smile she gave Vishinsky dropped like a mask from her face when she saw the ostracized Kardelj and Rankovitch.

The latter extended their hands and she shook them, but as one Western diplomat observed:

"She looked as if she was slipping them a bomb in that handshake."

Ana Pauker quickly left the group while Vishinsky excused himself a few minutes later.

$58,800 Project Set In County On State Roads

An estimated $58,800 road and bridge project in Pickaway County will be among 22 jobs open for bids in the state office building, Columbus, on Aug. 17.

Earl L. Reeb, state highway director, said Thursday plans call for construction of a steel beam bridge with concrete deck over Hargus Creek on Route 22, north east of Circleville.

And, .104 mile of Route 22 in Circleville and Washington Townships is scheduled for improvement by grading, draining and paving with asphaltic concrete.

In all, the highway department, plans to spend about $1 million on the 22 jobs covering 59 miles of roads and four bridges, Reeb stated.

AFL Files Suit Under T-H Act

TOLEDO, Aug. 12—The first court action by a union in the Toledo area under provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act was on file today in federal court.

The suit, filed by the AFL in behalf of the Toledo Western Union Division Commercial Telegraphers Union, charged violation of the union's contract.

The union contended that Fred J. Gibbons, manager, and J. J. Connors, manager and operating chief of the Toledo Western Union office, neither included in the union contract, have taken over jobs covered by the pact.

The union states that Western Union has denied the contract violations and has said its actions were taken to effect an operating economy which was necessary to remain in business.

Hall's Travel Is Restricted

NEW YORK, Aug. 12—Gus Hall, one of the indicted 12 members of the Communist national board, has been refused permission to travel at will by New York's federal court.

Federal Judge Samuel Kaufman rejected an affidavit last night submitted by Hall's attorney asking that the communist party official be permitted to be free to go where he pleased and "carry on normal activities."

In rejecting the affidavit Judge Kaufman said:

"What you are asking the court to do is license the activities of this defendant so he may engage in the very activities the government complains about."

Wallace Petition Ruled Invalid

CANTON, Aug. 12—More than half of the signatures appearing on Wallace-For-President nominating petitions were ruled invalid late yesterday by the Stark County board of election.

Board officials said that only 850, or 42 per cent, of 2,061 names submitted on 68 petitions have been declared valid.

Three petitions circulated by Jack R. Corkran were thrown out on the grounds that a circulator must be of age to qualify the names.

Corkran, allegedly only 19 years old, currently is awaiting grand jury action on charges of illegal registration and voting.

Two Men Held In Woman's Death

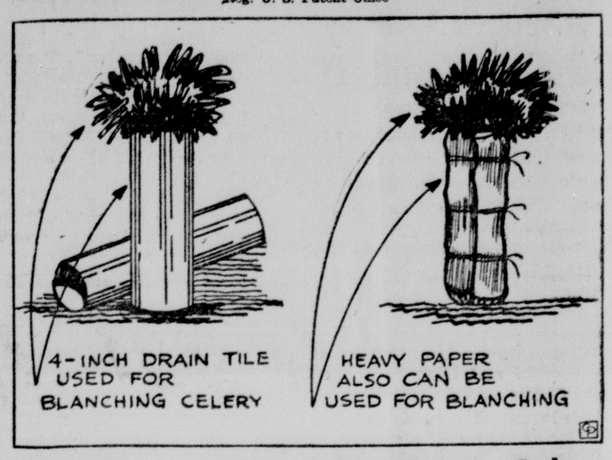

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 12—Charleston police held two men today in connection with the death of Nora Ellen Young, alias Richardson, whose body was found floating Wednesday in the Ohio river near Gallipolis.

Police Lt. Dewey Williams said the woman lived on a house boat in Elk river at Charleston, and added:

"There is a possibility she was beaten to death and thrown into the river."

Blanching, a Must for Better Celery

By DEAN HALLIDAY

A FREEDOM gardener, who is growing his own celery for the first time, asks if it is necessary to blanch it, and when and how? There is only one answer and that is that celery is at its best only after blanching.

The time to blanch the stalks is when the weather has turned cool to stay. Blanching in warm, dry weather causes the stalks to turn rusty.

There are a number of methods of blanching celery. It can be done by banking up earth against the plants. Blanching with boards placed along each side of a row of plants is a convenient method and well adapted to the home garden.

When only a few plants are grown the use of small drain tile for blanching purposes gives good results. When the plants are about the height of the tile, set the tile over the plant, as shown in the Garden-Graph. The growth of the plant will be forced up through the top of the tile resulting in nicely blanched stalks.

Heavy paper can also be used for blanching celery. The paper should be wrapped around each plant, as illustrated. Roofing paper can also be used instead of boards for blanching. This method involves cutting the roofing paper in strips a foot wide and unrolling along each side of the row of plants. It can be held in place by means of stakes.

The time required for blanching depends upon the variety of celery and the weather. Mounding of late celery can usually begin about the middle of August. If the mounding method is used, care must be taken to avoid getting soil into the hearts of the plants.

WHO'S TO BELL THE CAT?

Spy Hearing Is Growing More Weird Every Day

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—This congressional spy hearing business is getting absolutely weird—even for guys who have been hanging around Capitol Hill for a good many years.

It's jammed up with all the who-dun-it angles of a good murder mystery—without any of the assurance that it's all going to come out right in the end.

Finally, it leaves observers plagued with the nagging, frightening thought that if the villain—or villains—are not exposed eventually, things can get pretty catastrophic for ordinary citizens.

Enough flat statements and flat denials of same have cropped up to leave no doubt that someone definitely is playing fast and loose with the truth in several situations.

There was the case of Whitaker Chambers, senior editor of Time Magazine, and Alger Hiss, former State department official, for instance. Chambers said Hiss used to be a top Communist and that he and Hiss once were close friends and all that sort of thing. Hiss denied it all, said he didn't even know Chambers.

* * *

MORE RECENTLY, there was the case of Duncan C. Lee, former legal adviser to Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan in the Office of Strategic Services. He flatly denied various espionage and sabotage charges which had been made by Miss Elizabeth Bentley, confessed former Communist spy.

In between, there were innumerable instances of similar flat charges and equally flat denials involving Miss Bentley and the various persons she named as part of a gigantic and spectacular spy ring.

Now there's nothing new about differences of opinion on Capitol Hill—particularly on subjects legislative that often tend to be somewhat vague. But there was nothing vague or theoretical about these diametrically opposed testimonies. They concerned specific instances, definite dates and unequivocal charges of Communist Party membership or affiliation.

There was seldom a possibility of difference of opinion or forgetfulness. Either a man was at such a place on such a date, or he wasn't. Either a woman was a part of the Communist Party activities at such-and-such a time or she wasn't.

Therefore, when one said yes and the other said no, it obviously was a matter of lying—and on large proportions.

Congressman Ed Hebert, the Louisiana Democrat who sits on the House UnAmerican Activities Committee, at one point became so angry that he demanded "that action be taken to prosecute those who have committed perjury."

It was a fine idea. The only trouble was, who was going to bell the cat? Who was going to decide which persons were lying and which ones were telling the truth? It was not an easy dilemma.

Throughout the entire hearings, the feeling grows among the listeners that the pattern is getting wilder, weirder and more frightening daily—one way or the other. For, as yet, there is no sign at all that the case ever will be solved.

Hitler's Car To Spur Recruits At Illinois Fair

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—Hitler's jet-black 250-horsepower Mercedes-Benz is the first car Chicago Exporter Christopher G. Janus ever owned.

That's what Janus told a newsman last night when he and four associates stopped in Columbus for dinner, on their way to the Illinois State Fair at Springfield with the mammoth land cruiser.

Janus said the 9,500 pound machine with inch-and-a-half bullet-proof glass tore up a set of 8.25x17 tires that couldn't be replaced in Harrisburg, Pa., so repairmen ground down the hubs. Now the 135-mile-per-hour touring car sports heavy-duty, eight-ply truck tires.

The 36-year-old former UNRRA chief intelligence officer for the Balkans said there are more than 40 gadgets on the instrument panel of the machine, built to resist land mines, and it uses one gallon of gas every seven miles. A 60-gallon tank gives it a cruising range of 420 miles.

The car, upholstered in soft, blue-black leather, will be used to stimulate armed forces recruiting. Janus said it has 13 secret compartments, one of which was especially designed to house Hitler's Luger automatic pistol.

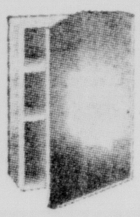

17 Escape Death In Bus Mishap

WELD, Me., Aug. 12—Seventeen youths—seven from Columbus and one from Mechanicsburg—shivered today over their narrow escape from death when their Camp Kawanee bus plunged 35 feet into a stream near Passadumkeag, Me.

The group was on its way to climb mile-high Mt. Katahdin in Baxter state park when their open-sided truck crashed into the stream, landing upside down and half submerged.

Counterfeiter's Days Numbered

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12—Shed a tear for the poor counterfeiter. He'll soon be applying for unemployment compensation, or spending the next few years wearing stripes.

According to John C. Rout, foreman of siderography of the United States Bureau of Printing and Engraving, the counterfeiters' chances of palming off their currency and remaining out of jail are practically nil.

"Consciousness of counterfeit money is now embedded in the minds of more people than ever before," Rout asserted.

He sounded the death-knell for counterfeiters at the concluding session here of the International Association of Printing House Craftsmen, Inc.

Daniels Indicted By Seneca County On Two Counts

TIFFIN, Aug. 12—Robert M. Daniels, 22, of Columbus, confessed partner in one of the state's most extensive murder sprees, stood indicted by a Seneca County grand jury today on two first degree murder charges.

Daniels, who was at least present in six slayings, already is awaiting trial for the cornfield murders of Mansfied Reformatory Superintendent John E. Niebel and Niebel's wife and 21-year-old daughter.

The latest indictments at Tiffin are for the July 22 slaying of James J. Smith, 25, of near Tiffin, and truck driver Orville Taylor, 28, of Niles, Mich. No action will be taken on these charges until the Mansfield trial is finished.

Daniels also is wanted in Columbus for the murder of Earl Ambrose, a tavern owner.

Bath Sets Stage For Opening Day

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12 — State Fair Manager Edwin J. Bath and his staff were set up today in fairgrounds administration as workmen rushed to prepare the grounds for the opening of the 94th agricultural show on Aug. 28.

All entries are closed except for the horse show and Bath said there already are so many equines entered for the Saturday night show that the WLW Jamboree, customarily held in the coliseum, had to be moved to the bandstand. Entries for the horse show close Aug. 18.

Spud Field Day Gives New Ideas

Many 'Surprises' Await Growers

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—Ohio growers will hold their annual Potato Field Day on the Virgil Royer farm, near Arcanum in Darke County, today.

Alvin Moll, extension horticulturist, Ohio State university, says that general farmers who are not familiar with the improvements in potato culture and in machinery for growing the crop would find many surprises at the Royer Farm.

County Agent E. F. Kuester of Greenville has arranged a side tour to visit farms near Royer's where the owners are using a two-year potato-wheat rotation and have an inexpensive farm storage for potatoes.

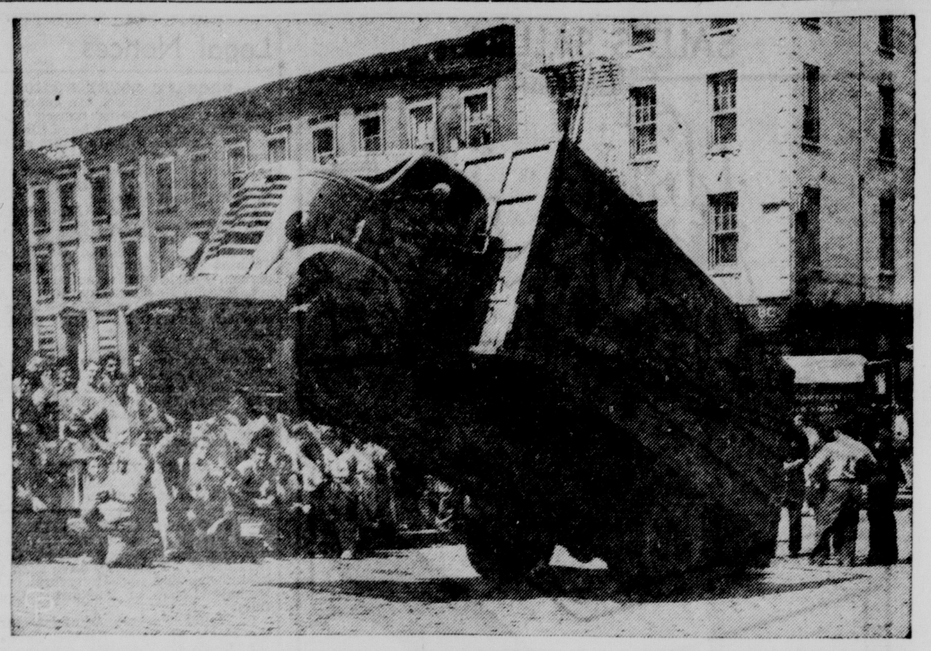

A demonstration of clearing vine growth from fields before harvest with flame throwers and with a vine beater will be the feature at another farm stop.

Members of the Federal-State Inspection Service were to give a continuous demonstration of properly packing U. S. No. 1 potatoes. Another period is allotted for an inspection of spray plots where the disease and insect control work has been directed by John Bushnell and J. D. Wilson, Ohio experiment station.

* * *

SPEAKERS for the afternoon program include E. L. Newdick, who has charge of potato certification in Maine; Amos Meyer, chief, Ohio Bureau of Markets; O. C. Brookhart, manager, Ohio Potato Growers Association; John Bushnell; and J. D. Wilson. Newdick recently has observed methods of growing potatoes in European countries, and he will report on the prospects for the 1948 crop of Maine potatoes.

Moll says Ohio potatoes would sell better if more of the crop was carefully graded, and he suggests growers make sure of seeing the grading demonstration. Comments made by Meyer on marketing practices also will be pertinent information for growers who will have a good crop of potatoes to sell this year.

Sawyer Signs For Steel Homes

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—Officials of the Lustron Corp. at Columbus said today that a new allotment of steel in Washington assured the early mass production of pre-fabricated houses.

Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer signed a steel industry agreement allotting about 59,000 tons of steel to the makers of pre-fab houses.

Lustron President Carl Strandlund said his firm would get approximately 40,000 tons out of the allotment—enough for several months of operations.

Grand Jury Hears 2 Murder Counts

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—Two Columbus persons faced separate second degree murder indictments today as the result of changes in the charges made by the Franklin County grand jury.

Attractive 29-year-old divorcee, Virginia Pearson, originally charged with manslaughter, was indicted for shooting Former Sheriff's Deputy Frank V. Martin in her home last July 23.

Lawrence E. Cook, 21, first was charged with kidnapping in the death of Ethel Adkins, 20, who jumped from his car last July 13, allegedly to escape his advances.

Taft Labor Law Said Red Ally

CINCINNATI, Aug. 12—A Cincinnati city councilman believes the Taft-Hartley Act may prove to be one of Communism's greatest allies.

Councilman Rollin H. Everett told a Junior Chamber of Commerce luncheon:

"The legal snarls and delays set as traps in the Taft-Hartley Act can become a most effective weapon in breaking unions. An effective and free labor movement capable of balancing the tremendous and growing power of corporations is an absolute necessity to our way of life."

26 Witnesses Due In Probe

NEWPORT, Ky., Aug. 12—Twenty-six witnesses are scheduled to appear at a hearing starting today in Kenton County, Ky., on charges that gambling was permitted to take place at the widely-known Lookout House.

Among those named in the case which was expected to require at least two weeks was James H. Brink, former operator of the night club, and several of his employes.

School Plans $5,000 Award

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12—Dean Herbert C. Hunsaker of Cleveland college of Western Reserve university in Cleveland announced today that the college will award $5,000 in adult scholarships to 30 people for part-time study this fall.

Dr. Hunsaker said a city-wide contest will be held to determine the winners of the scholarships, believed to be the first ever awarded by any institution to adults for undergraduate work.

Federal Finance Survey Asked

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—Sen. Millikin, (R) Colo., called today for the next administration to survey all government-financed functions to decide which can be scrapped to cut the nation's tax load.

Millikin, chairman of the Senate finance committee, predicted that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will carry out such a study if elected.

At the same time, Millikin joined Senate GOP Policy Chairman Taft, (R) Ohio, in forecasting a budgetary surplus this year. This contradicts the gloomy outlook by Treasury Secretary Snyder, who had declared there will be a deficit.

Spud Field Day Gives New Ideas

Many 'Surprises' Await Growers

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—Ohio growers will hold their annual Potato Field Day on the Virgil Royer farm, near Arcanum in Darke County, today.

Alvin Moll, extension horticulturist, Ohio State university, says that general farmers who are not familiar with the improvements in potato culture and in machinery for growing the crop would find many surprises at the Royer Farm.

County Agent E. F. Kuester of Greenville has arranged a side tour to visit farms near Royer's where the owners are using a two-year potato-wheat rotation and have an inexpensive farm storage for potatoes.

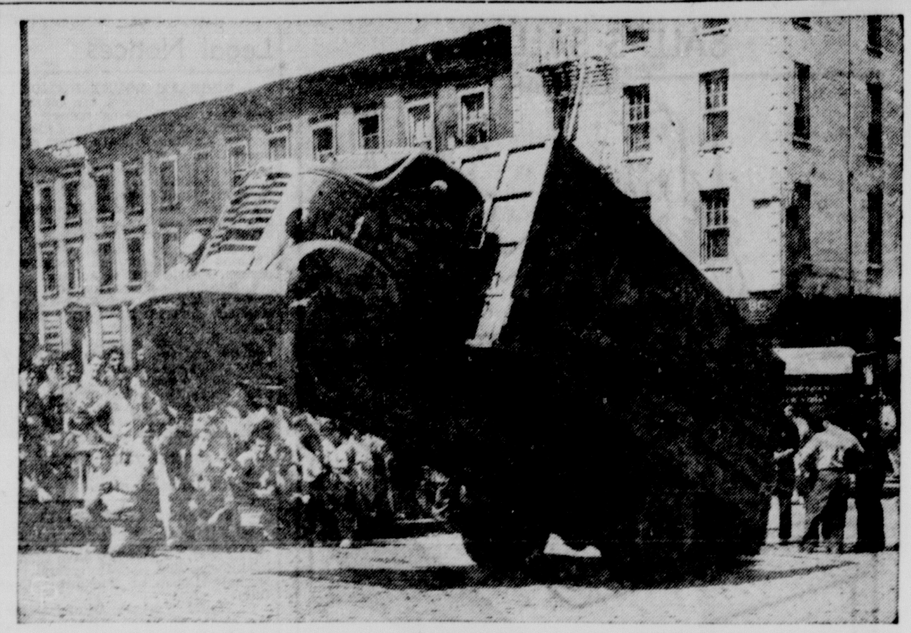

A demonstration of clearing vine growth from fields before harvest with flame throwers and with a vine beater will be the feature at another farm stop.

Members of the Federal-State Inspection Service were to give a continuous demonstration of properly packing U. S. No. 1 potatoes. Another period is allotted for an inspection of spray plots where the disease and insect control work has been directed by John Bushnell and J. D. Wilson, Ohio experiment station.

* * *

SPEAKERS for the afternoon program include E. L. Newdick, who has charge of potato certification in Maine; Amos Meyer, chief, Ohio Bureau of Markets; O. C. Brookhart, manager, Ohio Potato Growers Association; John Bushnell; and J. D. Wilson. Newdick recently has observed methods of growing potatoes in European countries, and he will report on the prospects for the 1948 crop of Maine potatoes.

North-South Tilt To Emphasize Offensive Power

CANTON, Aug. 12—The emphasis will be on offense when the North and South squads meet in the annual all-star game here tomorrow night.

Although Coaches Harry Strobel of the North and Chuck Mather of the South have spent much of their time drilling the boys on defensive in practice sessions, the squads have been working overtime on passing and snappy offense.

Last year's game ended in a 6-6 tie. It was a drab, slow-moving contest, in which little tricky offense was used.

"We're really going to shoot the works," said Strobel, pilot of the undefeated Barberton high school team last season. "These boys have come along in grand fashion and we look for a lot of good football tomorrow night."

Davis To Referee Godoy-Kid Bout

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—Jackie Davis of Cleveland was named today to referee the Arturo Godoy-Alabama Kid ten-round boxing match at Columbus next Tuesday.

Godoy in two previous appearances has expressed marked disapproval of hometown officials, and Promoter Al Haft imported Gus Lesnevich, then the light heavyweight champion, to officiate at Godoy's second fight with Pat Richard.

The South American, who will have a 20-pound weight advantage, will rate as a heavy favorite. He'll come into the ring at about 200 to 180 for the kid.

North-South Tilt To Emphasize Offensive Power

CANTON, Aug. 12—The emphasis will be on offense when the North and South squads meet in the annual all-star game here tomorrow night.

Although Coaches Harry Strobel of the North and Chuck Mather of the South have spent much of their time drilling the boys on defensive in practice sessions, the squads have been working overtime on passing and snappy offense.

Last year's game ended in a 6-6 tie. It was a drab, slow-moving contest, in which little tricky offense was used.

"We're really going to shoot the works," said Strobel, pilot of the undefeated Barberton high school team last season. "These boys have come along in grand fashion and we look for a lot of good football tomorrow night."

Davis To Referee Godoy-Kid Bout

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—Jackie Davis of Cleveland was named today to referee the Arturo Godoy-Alabama Kid ten-round boxing match at Columbus next Tuesday.

Godoy in two previous appearances has expressed marked disapproval of hometown officials, and Promoter Al Haft imported Gus Lesnevich, then the light heavyweight champion, to officiate at Godoy's second fight with Pat Richard.

The South American, who will have a 20-pound weight advantage, will rate as a heavy favorite. He'll come into the ring at about 200 to 180 for the kid.

Demon Hanover Captures Hambletonian With Ease

The three-year-old son of Dean Hanover-Sorceress established his right to the title here yesterday as he won the famed Hambletonian from 10 of the best trotters in the country.

He was an odds-on favorite in both heats (the race is run on a best 2 in 3 basis) and he won as such a favorite should.

Demon Hanover took the lead at the start in both heats, winning the first by a length in 2:03 1-5 for the mile and the second in 2:02, pulled up.

Of even more interest than the horse, is his driver, Harrison Hoyt, a young hat manufacturer of Bethel, Conn.

* * *

HOYT, WHO has been in the game only four years, is the first amateur driver ever to win the Hambletonian.

He also is the first owner-driver ever to win the $60,000 classic, the blue ribbon event of the trotting world.

Veteran drivers in the race paid high tribute to Hoyt's skill as a reinsman, all admitting he had much the best horse.

Hoyt bought the horse as a yearling from Lawrence Sheppard, paying $2,600 for the Demon and only a week ago Sheppard offered to buy back the colt for $75,000.

Describing the victory, Hoyt said:

"I had my horse under stout restraint in both heats. I would have been content to lay off the pace if any horse had been good enough to make a serious challenge. But when I realized I had the best horse I merely let him romp ahead."

Rollo was second and Egan Hanover third in each heat.

Brave-Bum Series Tops Race In NL

American Loop Leaders Close

NEW YORK, Aug. 12—Boston is primed today for the "big" series—a five-game struggle involving the league-leading Braves and the runner-up, Brooklyn.

The Dodgers, one game behind in the lost column, are three in arrears in the standings. Dodger Manager Burt Shotton says his charges must win three of the five to keep things tight.

Boston has hit a slump and can't seem to revive the winning habit of a few weeks back. Still, with ace lefthander Warren Spahn slated to duel the in-and-out southpaw, Joe Hatten, tonight the Braves may be ready to rebound.

While Boston and Brooklyn are feuding, the Cardinals, virtually tied for second, could sneak into first.

Both Brooklyn and Boston came up with one-run triumphs yesterday.

* * *

BROOKLYN'S Marv Rackley clipped Dutch Leonard for a ninth-inning single to score Billy Cox with the winning run in the 3-to-2 victory. Erv Palica, 20-year-old rookie righthander, was the winner.

Eddie Miller and Dick Sisler smacked homeruns for Philadelphia.

Jeff Heath and Bob Elliott, Boston's homerun twins, unloaded their specialties against New York Giant ace, Larry Jansen, to account for all the runs in the Braves' 4-to-3 victory. Johnny Sain notched his 15th victory.

Stan Musial drove in four runs with his 28th homer and a double to spark the St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-to-4 win over the Cincinnati Reds.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, behind the three-hit twirling of Rip Sewell, trimmed the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 2, to move to within a half-game of the fourth-place Giants.

In the American League, the Philadelphia Athletics climbed into a virtual tie for the league leadership on Sam Chapman's "grand slam" homerun in the seventh inning. The big blow gave the Mackmen an 8-to-3 win over the Washington Senators. The A's now are one ten-thousandth of a percentage point behind the league-leading Cleveland Indians.

* * *

CLEVELAND split a twinight doubleheader with the St. Louis Browns. The Indians smashed out 17 hits to win the first, 7 to 5, but were roughed up in the nightcap, 12 to 4.

In another night game, the Chicago White Sox got only two hits, but defeated the Detroit Tigers and Virgil Trucks, 2 to 1. Marino Pieretti was the winner. He surrendered four hits.

In the only afternoon game played in the American League, the Boston Red Sox defeated the New York Yankees, 5 to 2, to hand the champions their fourth straight loss.

Dr. Stanton Is Given Nod

WESTBURY, N. Y., Aug. 12—Harness racing will be resumed at Roosevelt Raceway tonight with the Boston Pace occupying the feature spot on the card.

There was no racing at the Westbury track last night due to the running of the Hambletonian classic at Goshen.

The second half of the raceway's stake program gets underway tomorrow night with the final dash of the $20,000 Benjamin W. Downing Memorial Pace at a mile and a half.

Dr. Stanton, creator of the new world's record of 3:13.2 for the distance in his qualifying heat last week, is heavily favored.

Strong Finishes Net Wins For Blues, Indians

By International News Service

The old-fashioned garrison finish was highly popular with two American Association ball clubs today, and proportionately in disrepute with two others.

Hank Bauer of Kansas City slammed a homerun with the bases full in the ninth inning to defeat second place Milwaukee, 5 to 3. Al Epperly, Milwaukee's No. 1 hurler, was the victim.

League leading Indianapolis pushed over six runs on two hits in the eighth to nip Louisville, 7 to 6.

As a result, the Tribe picked up a game on the runnerup Brewers and now lead by 10-½.

Minneapolis plastered a 12-to-7 defeat on St. Paul, the Apostles falling back into a deadlock for fourth place with idle Columbus. The Red Birds and Toledo were rained out at Columbus.

'Bama Ray, Bobby Rhawn and Ben Warren of the Millers all had homeruns, Rhawn's coming with the sacks loaded during an eight-run sixth inning enjoyed by the Millers.

Browns Polish Punt Technique To Stretch Mark

BOWLING GREEN, Aug. 12—The Cleveland Browns continued to concentrate on punting today with Horace Gillom, Warren Lahr and Tommy Colella sharing the spotlight.

The Browns conducted a long morning classroom session yesterday and a workout in the afternoon in the art of successful punting.

Last year, the Browns were forced to kick 52 times, and not once was the ball blocked. Coach Paul Brown pointed out that the Browns "are pretty proud of that record and we want to add to it."

Gillom, Lahr and Colella each took turns at punting yesterday with the offensive going down to nail the receiver.

Gillom, the big Massillon end, has booted the ball at least 60 yards each kick this season and appears about ready to take the All-American Conference punting crown. He just missed last year, finishing second to Mickey Colner of Brooklyn, with a 44.6 average for 47 boots.

Zaharias Seen Topping Women

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 12—Babe Didrikson Zaharias will be the one they'll watch today when the 72-hole medal play begins for the 1948 Women's National Open golf championship.

Mrs. Zaharias, who last week won the Tam O'Shanter and unofficial "world's championship" at Chicago, is favored to win the open from a stellar field of 50 professional and amateur women golfers.

The tournament, being played on the 75-par Atlantic City Country Club course—the first time the open has been staged in the East—will be concluded Sunday.

Bewitch Easily Cops Feature

CHICAGO, Aug. 12—Bewitch, Calumet Farm's juvenile filly champion of 1947, added another stakes race today to the string of victories that has stamped her as one of the top three-year-olds of the year.

The daughter of Bull Lea-Potheen easily won the $27,200 Artful Handicap at Washington Park yesterday and added $18,200 to her earnings.

Jockey N. Leroy Pierson brought Bewitch to the wire two lengths ahead of K. A. Kroeck's Blue Helen. Mrs. E. E. D. Shaffer's Miss Mommy was third a length back, and Bewitch's stablemate, Whirl Some, was fourth in the field of eight 3-year-olds in the seven-furlong event.

Boyers Win Tourney Tilt In Drizzle

Columbus Traders Defeated, 5-2

Only a handful of die-hard Circleville softball fans outlasted the drizzle Wednesday night in which Boyers softball team defeated Ohio School of Trade squad 5-2 in the Circleville Night Softball League tournament opener.

The few fans who did turn out, however, were well rewarded with chuckles as members of both teams slipped and sloshed over the diamond in chase of the skewering aggates.

Second game of the scheduled Wednesday twin bill was postponed until Saturday night because of the muddy diamond.

The Wednesday game was stalled in the first inning with two of the Traders retired when two of the large bulbs in the outfield popped out because of a blowing drizzle. The game resumed about 15 minutes later, with the third man of the inning grounding out.

Boyers scored a single tally in its half of the first inning on a Trader error and a passed ball.

* * *

UNUSUAL in the game was the ease with which the game's three homeruns were scored. Nearly any hit into the outfield which failed to reach the fielders in the air was a potential four-baser.

Both Trader runs were four-base smashes. Boyer Shortstop Jones got the third circuit clout. He had one man aboard.

The two-run clincher score posted by Boyers in the last of the sixth inning was made when the first man walked, and two hits were fumbled in the infield by the Traders.

Thursday night's tourney schedule calls for Boyds to meet Lockbourne Merchants at 8:15 p. m., following the Kiwanis-sponsored miniature air show at the park.

A double bill has been scheduled for Friday night, Isalys to play Mumaws at 7:15 p. m., followed by a game between Tinks and Walnut at 8:15 p. m.

The game between Millirons and Belmont AC of Columbus, postponed Wednesday, is scheduled for 8:15 p. m. Saturday.

Following is the box score of the Boyers Wednesday win:

Boyers Win Tourney Tilt In Drizzle

Columbus Traders Defeated, 5-2

Only a handful of die-hard Circleville softball fans outlasted the drizzle Wednesday night in which Boyers softball team defeated Ohio School of Trade squad 5-2 in the Circleville Night Softball League tournament opener.

The few fans who did turn out, however, were well rewarded with chuckles as members of both teams slipped and sloshed over the diamond in chase of the skewering aggates.

Second game of the scheduled Wednesday twin bill was postponed until Saturday night because of the muddy diamond.

The Wednesday game was stalled in the first inning with two of the Traders retired when two of the large bulbs in the outfield popped out because of a blowing drizzle. The game resumed about 15 minutes later, with the third man of the inning grounding out.

Boyers scored a single tally in its half of the first inning on a Trader error and a passed ball.

• • •

UNUSUAL in the game was the ease with which the game's three homeruns were scored. Nearly any hit into the outfield which failed to reach the fielders in the air was a potential four-baser.

Both Trader runs were four-base smashes. Boyer Shortstop Jones got the third circuit clout. He had one man aboard.

The two-run clincher score posted by Boyers in the last of the sixth inning was made when the first man walked, and two hits were fumbled in the infield by the Traders.

Thursday night's tourney schedule calls for Boyds to meet Lockbourne Merchants at 8:15 p. m., following the Kiwanis-sponsored miniature air show at the park.

A double bill has been scheduled for Friday night, Isalys to play Mumaws at 7:15 p. m., followed by a game between Tinks and Walnut at 8:15 p. m.

The game between Millirons and Belmont AC of Columbus, postponed Wednesday, is scheduled for 8:15 p. m. Saturday.

Following is the box score of the Boyers Wednesday win:

4-H Club Girls To Hold Elimination Contest Monday

Winners To Be Sent To Ohio Fair

18 Groups Set For Demonstration

Pickaway County 4-H Club home economics representatives to be entered in the Ohio State Fair, Aug. 28—Sept. 3, will be selected Monday in an elimination contest in the common pleas courtroom.

Judging will be conducted by Miss Eva Kinsey, assistant state 4-H Club leader of the Ohio State university extension department, assisted by Miss Genevieve Alley, county home demonstration agent.

The county's 18 girls' clubs will participate in three scheduled elimination events. They are: style revue, exhibits and demonstrations.

Three finalists will be selected from the style revue. One will be judged on the complete costume project and the other two from any of the dress projects.

• • • •

MISS KINSEY will pick seven winners of clothing exhibits. They are the cotton dress, dress-up dress, sports wear, tailored clothes, undergarments, complete costume and school dress.

One team and one individual will be entered in the State Fair from demonstration elimination. They are:

Girls individual demonstration, girls team demonstration, dairy food independent demonstration and dairy foods team demonstration, fire prevention team and individual demonstrations, and quality milk team and individual demonstrations.

State Fair entry rules declare that each member must have passed her 14th birthday by Jan. 1, 1948, and have completed three or more years of 4-H Club work, including this year.

Also, a member may compete in only one activity. This does not include exhibit entries; and a member may participate in the same class only once.

Miss Alley urged all 4-H Club members to begin planning now for entries and displays for the Pickaway County Fair, Sept. 14-18.

Clothing and food booths will be erected in the Coliseum this year and if a club is planning to have a platform under the booth it is to be no higher than two feet, Miss Alley declared.

• • •

DECORATIONS for the top of booths have been eliminated and the side structure of each booth will be limited to a triangle extending from top back to bottom front.

The tentative schedule for the County Fair sets Sept. 14, for erection and decoration of booths which must be completed by 8 p. m.

Food clubs may put up entire exhibits, but no clothing projects are to be placed in booths until after judging on Wednesday.

On Sept. 15, clothing projects will be graded and the style revue winners selected. On this day, a style show for all clothing projects will be held.

The demonstration contest will be conducted on Sept. 16 while the food revue will be held on Sept. 17. Each girl in foods projects should prepare a tray or lunch box that she feels would make a good school meal.

For the health contest, each club is directed to select an entry for the health achievement contest. The entry must be 14 or over and active in club work for three or more years.

In judging, personal health counts 25 percent; activities of the club relative to health and safety another 25 percent; and 50 percent for activities of the member relative to health and safety.

WRU Sets Up New Arts Degree

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12—A new degree, Associate in Philosophy, will be awarded this fall by Western Reserve University in Cleveland.

Dr. Winfred G. Leutner, university president, announced that the Ph. A. degree will be offered for the successful completion of an unprecedented program for adults only, called the basic arts, to be started this September by the school of general studies at Cleveland college.

Man, 51, Shot In Drinking Row

FOSTORIA, Aug. 12—Mrs. Louise M. Farrell of Fostoria, faced a Seneca County Grand jury charge today of shooting Louis H. English, 51, "with intent to kill, maim or harm."

Policemen said she walked into their headquarters and announced:

"I killed English."

The officers found the man unconscious on the floor of the home he shared with Mrs. Farrell. He was taken to the Fostoria city hospital with a four-inch gash from a bullet in his head. Hospital attendants said he still was in critical condition today.

The woman said she and English had quarreled during a drinking bout and that she shot him with a small caliber rifle.
